Development and NGOs: Internships in Malawi Study Abroad Program—APPLY NOW!

Program Flyer: https://osa.isp.msu.edu/cache/profiles/100474.pdf
Office of Study Abroad Program Description: https://osa.isp.msu.edu/Programs/program/index/105667.
Office of Study Abroad Application website https://osa.isp.msu.edu/.

If you are interested in this program, please contact the GenCen student Advisor, Dori Hopkins (gencenad@msu.edu) very soon. While there is an official application deadline of March 1, we strongly urge interested students to complete the online application no later than the end of the fall semester.

GenCen coordinates a 10-week study abroad program that will be offered during the Spring/Summer 2014 semesters, entitled Development and NGOs: Internships in Malawi. The program involves faculty from the Department of Anthropology and the Department of Geography. The program is limited to 6 students, and it attracts diverse students from a range of majors and interests. It involves 3 pre-departure meetings on MSU’s campus in March, April, and May; and 10 weeks in-country. There are 4 weeks of in-country course work, which includes guest lecturers, language instruction, and a field trip. The remaining 6 weeks is spent in a full-time internship at a non-governmental organization (NGO) that is organized by GenCen based on the student’s stated internship interests, and an academic paper is incorporated into the internship experience. Students live together in a guesthouse in Lilongwe, Malawi, and the program allows them to get direct experience working with Malawian professionals, college students, and community members—both at NGO offices, and in the neighborhoods and villages served by the NGOs.

This program provides students the opportunity to carry a full semester course load while participating in a nongovernmental organization (NGO) internship. The required ISS 330A course (Social Science Perspectives on Africa) meets twice during Spring 2014 semester and is completed during the first four weeks in Malawi. The remaining six weeks in Malawi are spent in a full-time, for-credit internship with an NGO. Some examples of NGOs a student may work with are Water Aid, Action Aid, or World Vision (all subject to change). In Africa, thousands of NGOs work on development projects related to agriculture, environment, and health. In examining these projects, we found that gender relations often determine who has access to critical resources. By studying complex issues such as women’s access to land and other natural resources, health care, household divisions of labor, and national and international economic development policies, students will gain an understanding of the cultural and societal forces at work in Malawi and beyond that can constrain and, in some cases, empower families as they attempt to improve their well-being.

Chantal Tetreault, Department of Anthropology

Transcultural Teens: Performing Youth Identities in French Cités

In this presentation, Dr. Tetreault develops an analysis of the symbolic practices of French Muslim teens as transcultural for how they combine cultural and linguistic referents in their communicative styles and for the ways they strategically construct and take apart the ideological underpinnings of their multiple social identities in everyday interactions. The experiences of Muslim French youth are characterized by the negotiation of multiple social identities that are, by turns, disparate, overlapping, and conflicting. In her study, Arab Muslim teens growing up in French cités (low-income subsidized housing projects) navigate between the cultural positioning of their Arabic-speaking immigrant parents and their French-speaking, French-born peers. As children of predominantly Algerian immigrants who live in cités, these adolescents occupy multiple stigmatized positions with respect to dominant national discourses and cultural ideologies. Dr. Tetreault examines how Arab Muslim French teens, and particularly girls, translate their experiences of racial and spatial marginalization into innovative forms of cultural and linguistic expression. In this way, she focuses on youth agency and the structural constraints of growing up culturally, racially, and spatially marginalized.

The “War on Drugs” and State Sexual Violence in Nicaragua

Most violence in Afro-Nicaraguan communities follows a gendered pattern. Men are most affected by violence associated with the intensification of the drug trade, while women and girls are most likely to be harmed by a social intimate inside their homes. Men and women also have distinct experiences of state violence that are conditioned by their socially differentiated subject positions and sexually differentiated bodies. This paper examines a case of soldier sexual abuse of children that occurred in an Afro-Nicaraguan community after the mestizo state militarized the Atlantic Coast to police the transnational drug trade. Community testimony reveals that women and men experienced militarization in distinct ways even as the occupation subjected all community spaces and bodies to forms of racial domination that were deeply sexual. Ethnographic attention to these processes reveals how racial and patriarchal state power works on socially differentiated subjects to incite varied forms of resistive consciousness and action.

Colombian Women: War, Peace and Hope

While decades of violence have impacted Colombian society as a whole, women have been particularly affected. They constitute the majority of the country’s population, and many academics and governmental and non-governmental organizations consider the future of Colombia to be in their hands. This presentation examines the role of women in Colombian’s recent historical events with focus on women organization’s peace initiatives.

Women Scorned: The Determinant of Women’s Participation in Armed Conflicts

Although generally overlooked in academic studies, women's participation often has a profound effect on the execution of political violence. The factors that explain such participation, however, have not been thoroughly examined. Some groups like al-Shabab in Somalia and the GIA in Algeria prohibit women members entirely. Other groups like the TPLF in Ethiopia and the FMLN in El Salvador include a mass of women at all levels of the organization, including in combat and leadership roles. Despite the importance of women's inclusion for considerations like the execution and resolution of conflict, no study examines women's participation in these organizations systematically. This project addresses this lacuna by examining the determinants of women's participation in violent political organizations in Africa from 1950-2011. The results demonstrate that variation in women's participation is systematically related to key organization-level features such as group ideology, size, and tactics.

Zeta Delta Chapter, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. is the official MLK Commemorative Celebration March Captains. For over 30 years, thousands of MSU students, administrators and staff have come together to celebrate the legacy of Dr. King and other Civil Rights activists. This is your opportunity to follow their lead by participating in this historic event. Please note that each organization is encouraged to bring a banner to march with (3ft x 6ft, or similar size) that represents their respective organization/group.

The Impact of Conscious and Unconscious Bias in Health Care Delivery: Improving Health Outcomes for the Underserved
3:30pm, Radiology Auditorium (Broadcast Secchia Center)
“Of all the forms of inequality, injustice in health care is the most shocking and inhumane.” (Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Medical Committee for Human Rights, 1966.) Dr. King was a strong voice for the fact that “access to health care” was of fundamental importance as a civil right in our country. Dr. King knew during his life that lack of access of care was one of most cruel forms of discrimination and lack of parity. The work that the three of you are doing collectively to address the impact of Conscious and Unconscious Bias in Health Care Delivery in an effort to deliver culturally competent health is critical to improve the delivery of care to diverse patients and to the education of future and current physicians.

Racial Profiling, A Threat to Justice: Martin Luther King, Trayvon Martin, and MSU
6:30pm, 115 International Center
What is racial profiling? Who gets stopped by the police, and why? Who is affected by it? Who has the right to stop someone to check them, and what is the price society pays? The most egregious example of profiling in recent years was Trayvon Martin, and not only did he die, justice was never served, in the eyes of many. In New York a very large percentage of the youth of color have been stopped and frisked, and in the last mayoralty campaign there profiling was a major issue, resulting in the election of Bill de Blasio, an anti-profiling candidate. Here at MSU students and faculty of color have experienced profiling as well, on campus, on the streets of East Lansing, and in the Lansing area. This panel will commemorate MLK Day by addressing the issue. Panelists will address the question of racial profiling for our country and community, and will share their thoughts and personal experiences.

Love Economy Exhibition
January 20-February 14 (M-F 12:00-3:00pm or by appointment), LookOut! Gallery, C200 Snyder Hall
Multi-media artist Tomashi Jackson highlights the often-unspoken interface between the public and the private that the role of domestic workers embodies. Themes including beauty, value, visibility, environmental infrastructure, consumer behavior, and labor come together in her probing artwork. She uses drawing, painting, sculpture, sound, video, and performance, often creating interactive and layered works that explore personal and public histories of international Black experiences.

Ahmed “Kathy” Kathrada: A South African Activist for Non-Racialism and Democracy Exhibition
January 20-April 13, MSU Museum
This exhibition introduces visitors to South African Ahmed “Kathy” Kathrada, a champion of human rights, democracy, and non-racialism and a renowned figure in the anti-apartheid struggle. Nelson Mandela's prison mate, confidante, parliamentary counselor and friend, Kathy is a beloved figure in South Africa and his exemplary leadership continues to inspire South Africans and others around the world to work for freedom, non-racialism, and democracy. Through an examination of his life, the exhibition also traces the history of the South African struggle for a democratic government. This powerful exhibition includes a series of colorful flexible free-standing panels and banners featuring photographs, images of documents, and extended quotes from Kathrada and his liberation colleagues. One of the more moving and dramatic elements of the exhibit is a replica of Kathy's jail cell, from the notorious Robben Island prison. Visitors are able to experience the tiny cell and see the few personal items Kathy was allowed for more than 20 years of imprisonment. In addition, to these elements, there is a 6 minute video.
Ruby Bridges, Brown v. Board of Education and Civil Rights History in Lansing Exhibition
January 20-July 3, MSU Museum
This exhibition focuses on Brown v. Board of Education through the lens of the story of Ruby Bridges (www.rubybridges.com/), the child who was volunteered in 1960 by her parents to be the first black student to attend an all-white elementary school in New Orleans. This exhibition aims to build awareness of an important event in American history and an individual who played a specific role in that event; to increase awareness of the events and locales in local Civil Rights history; and to demonstrate how a signature piece of art can be used to illustrate an important event in American history, with interviews with Nelson Mandela and other anti-apartheid liberation leaders and world leaders.

Finding Midlife
January 24
12:00-1:30pm, Room 457 Berkey Hall
Presentation by Heather Dillaway (Wayne State University): What is midlife, and what does it entail? How do we think about and experience it? Recent scholars note that midlife is the “last uncharted territory” of the life course, in that childhood, adolescence and old age have gained scholarly attention but little has been given to “middle years.” Individuals who are past young/mid adulthood are treated as a uniform category, and we know very little about any age, identity or experience associated with midlife in particular. Using data from my qualitative interview study of 130 menopausal women in Southeast Michigan, I explore women’s perceptions of midlife, as well as their current chronological ages and life stages. For instance, what does it mean to be 52 or 58? And what does it mean to be done with raising kids? I also consider the life course contexts within which women think about and experience midlife, such as gender, class, race, relationship status, menopause, motherhood, job status, health or illness, and residential location. I arrive at tentative conclusions about how we can conceptualize or "find" midlife in women’s narratives, and how we should begin to understand this somewhat illusive life stage.

Academic Success Seminars: “Communicating with Other Scientists”

Tickets: $15 public, $10 student (with valid ID)
The Vagina Monologues is a V-Day global effort to end violence against women and girls. The play can be described as a comedy and drama, taking the audience through a range of emotions associated with the feminine experience. Most audience members indicate it’s a life changing experience. To learn more about V-Day visit www.vday.org/home. The 2014 beneficiary of the proceeds is the Sparrow Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner Unit (SANE). SANE is a critical community resource providing medical care and forensic evidence collection for victims of sexual violence. SANE is a key leader of the Capital Area Sexual Assault Response Team and serves hundreds of patients each year.

Black Girl Dangerous

Mia McKenzie is the Founding Editor and Editor-in-Chief of the Black Girl Dangerous blog (www.blackgirldangerous.org) which “seeks to, in as many ways possible, amplify the voices, experiences and expressions of queer and trans people of color.” The blog provides a virtual space for people of all different backgrounds to share their voices, literary and artistic talents, and create a community and collective activism.

Women’s Advisory Committee for Support Staff Forum and Resource Fair
March 17
www.adminsv.msu.edu/wacss/forum.html
The Women’s Advisory Committee to Support Staff is a committee of women support staff charged with advising the Executive Vice President of Administrative Services on issues affecting women staff. This event is open to all MSU support staff. Its purpose is to engage staff with key leaders at MSU to discuss current events and issues important to the success of employees—particularly as they relate to women—as well as discuss opportunities where we can contribute to the organization’s success. Questions received during registration will form the basis of topics covered at the Forum. The new Executive Vice President for Administrative Services (as well as other senior administrators from the University) will provide a short presentation and host a Q&A session of concerns taken directly from the floor. Featured each year at the Spring Forum is a Resource Fair that provides information and services available from departments, campus programs, groups, and local businesses that serve MSU employees. The Forum and Resource Fair provide an excellent opportunity to interact directly with senior administrators and other support staff, broaden knowledge on current issues and events, and receive answers to questions that directly affect you. We encourage your participation.

PROJECT 60/50
http://www.inclusion.msu.edu/Project6050/index.html
In January 2014 MSU will officially launch a year-long initiative to recognize two anniversaries involving major legislation that played a significant role in changing the daily lives of everyone in the US. On May 17, 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court declared that state laws establishing separate public schools unconstitutional in Brown v. Board of Education, and on July 2, 1964 President Lyndon B. Johnson signed into law the Civil Rights Act, which became the nation’s benchmark civil rights legislation that continues to resonate in America. These two prominent landmark decisions that took place 60 and 50 years ago (60/50) remain vital to us today and like many other colleges and universities around the nation, MSU will demonstrate its longstanding commitment to its land grant mission and the principle of equal opportunity for all. Project 60/50 is a university-wide initiative coordinated through the MSU Office for Inclusion and Intercultural Initiatives. The intent is to link academic exploration and study, public commemoration and remembrance, laced with a multitude of cultural expressions. Four capstone events are planned on the MSU campus during 2014-2015 as well as a multitude of lectures, symposiums, workshops and programs sponsored by, and administrated by, each academic department in the University. Special programs are in development to engage students, campus visitors, and our local and global communities. Please visit the website for updates on this initiative!
Student Health Services participates in the National College Health Assessment (NCHA) survey through our membership in the American College Health Association (ACHA). The questionnaire covers a diverse set of health-related topics including perceived health status, sexual behaviors and beliefs, alcohol-tobacco-drug behavior and beliefs, injury prevention, disease prevention and screening, victimization, exercise and rest, emotional and mental health, incidents of disease or injury, incidents of stressors, sources and credibility of health information, and background questions. The data collected from the NCHA survey is meant to help MSU, parents, and students better understand health trends, identify emerging problems, report behavioral norms, identify risk factors to safety and academic performance, prioritize student health care issues, allocate resources for programming, design new programs, and evaluate current strategies. The data is also used for our Social Norms campaign on campus, commonly known as “The Ducks.” The campaign promotes a better understanding of alcohol use by the MSU student population and challenges the prevailing myths and misperceptions which often lead to higher risk consumption.

New MSU website Dive In: A Culture Shock Resource Site
http://caitlah.cal.msu.edu/divein/
A new website has been launched by the Center for Applied Inclusive Teaching and Learning in Arts & Humanities, particularly by the guidance of Dr. Ellen Cushman. Girls' Night Out Presents The Feminine Mystique
January 30
7:00pm, Eastwood Schuler Books (2820 Towne Center Blvd. Lansing, MI 48912)
Meet MSU professors Lisa Fine and Kristen Fermaglich, co-editors of the first annotated edition of Betty Friedan's The Feminine Mystique, released in honor of the 50th anniversary of the original publication of the feminist classic. Here, reissued, is the book that jump-started the modern women's movement, filled with ideas and inspiration as vital to women today as when it first appeared. More than three decades later, the issues raised by Friedan still strike at the core of the challenges women face at home and in the workplace. As women continue to struggle for equality, to keep their hard-won gains and to find fulfillment in careers, marriage, and family, The Feminist Mystique remains a profound consciousness-raising work. This edition features a new introduction, "Metamorphosis: Two Generations Later," which addresses the complex issues women face today, such as family leave, health insurance, welfare reform, and sexual discrimination and harassment in the military. Betty Friedan also relates some of feminism's hard-won victories: the shrinking wage gap between man and women, increased visibility of women in sports, and new flexibility for working parents.

Calls for Papers and Proposals

November 13-16, Puerto Rico
Abstract Submission Deadline: January 19
Methods to create change, justice, peace and fairness through feminism have been prevalent topics of scholarly inquiry. Paper proposals are sought for a panel that will examine and explore the creation and implementation of various forms of activism as it pertains to feminism. This panel will focus on the conference subtheme of “Feminist Transgressions in Creating Justice.” Proposal topics may include but are not restricted to the following: Famous women in history and how they defied the odds to create lasting and meaningful justice; Student activism on college campuses and how it aims to seek justice, equality and sustainable change; How literature, film, spoken word, zines, social media, etc. are shaping how justice is understood and performed in feminism; Contemporary feminist transgressors and their contributions to transformational justice; Explorations of justice through diverse identities (e.g., racial, sexual). Please send a 250-word abstract, complete with your name, institutional affiliation, and contact information to Katherine Miller, Metropolitan State University of Denver, kmill127@msudenver.edu.

Journal of Global Faultlines
Submission deadline: January 31
http://www.keele.ac.uk/journal-globalfaultlines/
The Journal of Global Faultlines (ISSN: 2054-2089) is now accepting submissions for publication in its next general issue in Spring 2014. The Journal of Global Faultlines is an open-access peer-reviewed journal that covers the evolving current world situation by looking at global problems from a variety of different and overlapping perspectives: economic, political, philosophical, cultural, educational, geographical, social, and historical, among many others. The Journal aims to provide ongoing open forums to discuss and analyze global problems and developments from critical perspectives or viewpoints, and thus improve understanding of the underlying forces shaping the destiny of the world in the 21st century. To this end the journal also encourages contributions from writers and disciplines that are not commonly associated with the study of the aforementioned academic fields of study. All submitted manuscripts shall be subject to a double-blind reading, ensuring the integrity of the peer-review process. All submissions should be between 6,000 and 12,000 words, and include abstracts of no more than 200 words (in Microsoft Word file format). Authors need to submit their work to the editor Professor Bulent Gokay at b.gokay@keele.ac.uk.

South Eastern Regional Seminar in African Studies Conference
March 7-8, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Abstract Submission Deadline: February 1
http://www.ecu.edu/african/sersas/homepage.htm
The conference organizers of the South East Regional Seminar in African Studies (SERSAS) are inspired by recent scholarship that seeks to address questions of memory and imagination in how we first make and then render meaning from the multiple and often intersecting identities reflected in African people, societies and states. Other studies have revealed how popular consciousness in Africa has reflected the ways people and societies have created powerful meanings from oral traditions, shared memories, and imagined pasts, presents and futures. We seek to explore these and related themes in our upcoming conference, and welcome proposals at this time. We especially welcome proposals that may include analyses of a variety of constructed identities including ethnicity, race, class, gender, generation, cultural and linguistic, political, national and religious. Additionally, papers that may address identities related to the body and medical discourses are similarly welcome. Past conference papers have come from a variety of academic disciplines including anthropology, economics, geography, history, literary studies, maritime studies, music, African and foreign... languages (in translation) and political science. Please send proposals of no more than 300 words that outline the main themes and issues of your paper to Anta Sane: antasane@yahoo.com, Aran MacKinnon aran.mackinnon@gcsu.edu, Ken Wilburn wilburnk@ecu.edu.

Women's & Gender Studies Student Conference: “No Limits 2014”

It is open to undergraduate, graduate and recent graduate students throughout the region. All student projects related to women and/or gender issues are welcome. This conference is free and open to the public. Students interested in presenting their work at the conference should submit the following information by email to Dr. Linda Van Ingen at vaningenL1@unk.edu (type “No Limits” in the subject line): 1) Project Information: title and abstract of approximately 250 words describing your project and its larger significance. Indicate if it is a paper presentation (20 minutes) or a poster presentation (48x36 inches). 2) Your contact info: name, university affiliation, mailing address, email, phone. 3) Your faculty mentor for this project. 4) Biographical statement (about 50-75 words): your major/minor, hometown, academic and career goals, a fun fact. Please send this information as an attachment AND in the body of your email.

Gendered Perspectives on International Development
Applications accepted on a rolling basis.
Gendered Perspectives on International Development (GPID) publishes scholarly work on global social, political, and economic change and its gendered effects in developing nations. GPID cross-cuts disciplines, bringing together research, critical analyses, and proposals for change. Our previous series, the WID Working Papers (1981-2008), was among the first scholarly publications dedicated to promoting research on the links between international development and women and gender issues. In this tradition, GPID recognizes diverse processes of international development and globalization, and new directions in scholarship on gender relations. The goals of GPID are: 1) to promote research that contributes to gendered analysis of social change; 2) to highlight the effects of international development policy and globalization on gender roles and gender relations; and 3) to encourage new approaches to international development policy and programming. GPID Working Papers are article-length manuscripts (9,000-word maximum) by scholars from a broad range of disciplines, disseminating materials at a late stage of formulation that contribute new understandings of women’s and men’s roles and gender relations amidst economic, social, and political change. Individual papers in the series address a range of topics, such as: gender, violence, and human rights; gender and agriculture; reproductive health and healthcare; gender and social movements; masculinities and development; and the gendered division of labor. We particularly encourage manuscripts that bridge the gap between research, policy, and practice. If you are interested in submitting a manuscript to the GPID Working Papers series, please send a 150-word abstract summarizing the paper’s essential points and findings to Dr. Anne Ferguson, Editor, or Rowenn Kalman, Managing Editor, at papers@msu.edu. If the abstract suggests your paper is suitable for the GPID Working Papers, the full paper will be invited for peer review and publication consideration. Please note that authors retain the copyright to their papers and are encouraged to publish their papers in other journals.

Women’s Studies: An Interdisciplinary Journal
Applications accepted on a rolling basis.
www.mc.manuscriptcentral.com/GWST
Women’s Studies provides a forum for the presentation of scholarship and criticism about women in the fields of literature, history, art, sociology, law, political science, economics, anthropology and the sciences. It also publishes poetry, film and book reviews. Women’s Studies receives all manuscript submissions electronically via their ScholarOne Manuscripts website listed above. Preparation of Manuscripts: Women’s Studies accepts original articles of between 20 and 30 (double-spaced) pages in length. We also accept short prose pieces of varying length (not to exceed 20 pages) and poetry. All manuscripts should be submitted as Microsoft Word documents, double-spaced with standard font. Number manuscript pages consecutively throughout the paper. Authors should also supply a shortened version of the title for a running head, not exceeding 50 character spaces, an abstract of approximately 100 words, the author(s) affiliation and location. Please also include a cover letter stating that the article has not been published elsewhere, nor is it under consideration for publication elsewhere. The cover letter should also contain the mailing address, telephone number, and email address for all contributing authors. Further style guidelines are available at (http://www.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?page=instructions&journalCode=gwst20). If you have any questions or requests please contact the journal at womstudj@cgu.edu.

Journal of Women’s History
Applications accepted on a rolling basis.
http://journalofwomenshistory.org
The editors invite submission of article-length manuscripts (not exceeding 10,000 words including endnotes, 35 pages in length) accompanied by an abstract that summarizes the argument and significance of the work (not exceeding 150 words). We are interested in articles based on original empirical research as well as reflections on conceptual, theoretical, and methodological issues in women’s history. Given the Journal’s broad readership and increasingly transnational direction, we encourage consideration of the wider implications of each study. We also welcome letters to the editor in response to recent articles.
All new manuscripts submitted to the Journal of Women’s History must be submitted online at http://journalofwomenshistory.org. Peer reviewers and journal staff will also use the system for all communications regarding manuscripts.

The Journal of Black Masculinity
Applications accepted on a rolling basis.
http://www.blackmasculinity.com
The Journal of Black Masculinity is a peer-reviewed international publication providing multiple discoursed and multiple-discipline-based analyses of issues and/or perspectives with regard to black masculinities. We review empirical, theoretical, and literary scholarship as well as essays, poetry, and art for publication. Submissions from multiple disciplines beyond the humanities and social sciences are encouraged. The Journal of Black Masculinity is published three times a year and has a ten percent (10%) acceptance rate. The Journal of Black Masculinity also publishes special issues on a periodic basis with guest editors focusing on themed issues. Manuscript submissions, books for review, and correspondence concerning all editorial matters should be sent to: Dr. C. P. Gause via the contact information below. Authors should follow the APA Publication Manual, 6th edition (APA Press, 2010). A style guide for preparing manuscripts and ordering information are located on the journal’s website at http://www.blackmasculinity.com.

Men and Masculinities
Applications accepted on a rolling basis.
http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/jmmx
Men and Masculinities seeks empirical and theoretical articles, written for a multidisciplinary audience, that explore issues in masculinities. Topics of particular interest include: constructions of masculinities; male/female relationships; sexual behavior or sexual identities; representations of gender; diversity among men and intersections of race, ethnicity, sexuality, age, class, and masculinities. The journal subscribes to principles of non-sexist, non-heterosexist, and non-racist publishing, and the editors are also committed to publishing significant empirical work that challenges conventional wisdoms. Book reviews and essays are also welcome. Authors should submit their manuscripts through our online submission site (listed above). Manuscripts should conform to relevant stylistic guidelines of the Chicago Manual of Style, Documentation 2 (15th edition). Each manuscript should be accompanied by a title page including complete author name(s), affiliation(s), mailing address, phone, fax, and email information (for multiple-author papers, provide complete information for each author and indicate the corresponding author). There is a requirement of up to 30 pp. per manuscript, including references; each manuscript must also be double-spaced, font size 12, with at least 1" margins (for ALL margins). Submitted articles will undergo blind peer review. Authors are requested to place no form of identification either on the body of the manuscript or on the required abstract of 150 words or fewer and to remove any tracked changes from the electronic copy of the manuscript. A biographical note of 100 words or fewer, indicating the author’s affiliation, research interests, and recent or major publications should accompany the manuscript. Submission of a manuscript implies commitment to publish in the journal. Manuscripts should not be under consideration by any other publishers while being reviewed by Men and Masculinities or have been published elsewhere in substantially similar form or with substantially similar content. Every effort will be made to complete the editorial review process in a timely manner. Submitted manuscripts will not be returned.

Positions and Internships

Visiting Assistant Professor in International Studies and Women’s Studies
Denison University
Application Deadline: January 20
https://employment.denison.edu/

Denison University invites applications for a joint three-year appointment as visiting assistant professor in International Studies and Women’s Studies starting in the Fall of 2014. The International Studies Program is an interdisciplinary academic program that focuses on global processes associated with political economy and cultural analysis, broadly conceived. The Women’s Studies Program is an interdisciplinary academic program examining gender as it is mediated by ethnicity, race, class and sexual identity. Both programs offer courses that fulfill requirements in the college’s general education program. This appointment is in both programs and the three/three teaching load will be split evenly between the two programs. The successful candidate for this position will teach introductory, intermediate, and advanced courses in both programs. The candidate will have advising responsibilities after the first year. Discipline and area of specialization are open, although candidates should demonstrate interdisciplinary expertise in both research and teaching. We are particularly interested in candidates whose work addresses the intersections of race, gender, and class in local and transnational contexts. Active involvement in the life of the programs is expected. Ph.D. by summer of 2014 is required. Competency in contributing to the college’s new writing program is welcomed. Please submit a curriculum vitae, a letter of application outlining research and teaching interests and experience, a statement on teaching, a transcript, and three letters of recommendation to the website listed.

Assistant Professor of American Studies
University of California, Davis
Application deadline: February 1
https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/apply/JPF00203

The American Studies Program at the University of California, Davis invites applicants for an innovative and interdisciplinary scholar at the Assistant Professor rank, with research expertise in disability studies and at least one (and preferably two) of the following fields: digital/public humanities, nature/landscape, popular culture, and gender/sexuality studies. The appointee is expected to have strong research plan and teaching records and Ph.D. is required. We prefer scholars with a Ph.D. in American Studies. The successful candidate will have a strong research plan or demonstrate potential for research in interdisciplinary, and intersectional approaches to American Studies, and be able to teach undergraduate courses in disability studies, digital public humanities, gender/sexuality studies, popular culture and nature/culture. Ph.D. must be completed by the first day of courses (September 29, 2014). Applicants must demonstrate exceptional promise as scholars and teachers. The appointees will complement the current faculty expertise in nature and culture, food and technology, popular culture and transnational American Studies. Applicants should submit a cover letter including a statement of research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, one publication or professional paper and the contact information for three (3) references through the online application system.

Lecturer in 20th Century European History
Australian National University
Application Deadline: February 2

We wish to recruit an historian with an active research agenda in twentieth century Continental European history who will augment our national and international research profile and contribute to one or more of the School’s thematic areas of strength (Biography; cultural, social, political and intellectual history; Environmental History; Gender History; Indigenous History). The historian appointed will be expected to publish in top-ranking journals and with international publishers, and to supervise and recruit Higher Degree Research (HDR) students. He or she will contribute to the School’s teaching programs in European History at the Undergraduate, Honours, and Post Graduate Coursework (PGC) levels. Ability to contribute to the convening and teaching of HIST1209, From Terror to Terrorism, and to the teaching of digital humanities in the BA degree, would be desirable attributes. Chair, Native American and Indigenous Studies University of Washington, Seattle
http://apply.interfolio.com/23390
The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Washington seeks candidates for a full-time associate or full professor, to serve as Chair in the Department of American Indian Studies. American Indian Studies (AIS) at UW is a multidisciplinary academic department that offers an undergraduate major and a minor. It is also home to the Native Voices graduate program in indigenous film, video, and digital media. The department faculty represent a range of disciplines and approach their teaching and research from a decolonized, community-based and global perspective. The department works with national and regional Native American communities through the UW Tribal Leaders Summit, Native American Advisory Board, UW powwows, the Intellectual House project, and campus symposia and conferences. It is a campus leader in facilitating the recruitment and retention of Native American and indigenous students. University of Washington seeks a scholar of Native American and Indigenous studies and will consider applicants in all areas of specialization. The critical qualifications are a Ph.D. or comparable terminal degree in the candidate’s field; a record of distinguished scholarship and teaching; experience working with Native American communities and organizations; administrative experience that includes strategic educational planning, budget management, development and grant writing skills, advising, and personnel management. The chair will provide leadership for the department’s educational mission, work to enhance professional development opportunities for faculty, advocate for AIS in relations with college and university administrators, administer and develop department budget and resources, supervise staff, and promote mutually beneficial relations with regional Native communities and organizations. University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research, and service. The chair has the discretion to set a teaching schedule compatible with departmental leadership as his/her highest priority. The start date for this position is negotiable but may be as early as July 1, 2014. Candidates should provide a letter of application, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, statement of administrative philosophy and experience, teaching evaluations, and the names and contact information for at least three references. References will not be contacted until a candidate is being considered for a campus visit.

Assistant Professor of Women’s and Gender Studies
Syracuse University, NY
www.sujobopps.com (posting number 070809)
The Department of Women’s and Gender Studies at Syracuse University invites applications for an assistant professor of Women’s and Gender Studies. Syracuse seeks an interdisciplinary feminist scholar with a strong record of research and teaching in women’s and gender studies consistent with a tenure track appointment at a research university. Specifically, Syracuse invites applications from candidates who specialize in Latina, Chicana, Latin American, and/or indigenous scholarship. Candidates with expertise in feminist, decolonial, queer methods and theories will be given top consideration. Interdisciplinary doctoral training required; Women’s Studies or Interdisciplinary Ph.D. preferred. The candidate's work should complement the mission, goals, and strengths of the WGS Department at SU. The candidate will be expected to contribute to Syracuse’s core undergraduate and graduate curriculum and to help build a future graduate degree program. Our department is distinguished by its commitment to intersectional, transnational, and interdisciplinary approaches, with an emphasis on issues of race, class, disability, sexuality, and ethnicity as an inherent part of our signature focus on transnational feminist analyses of gender and gender justice. Interested candidates must apply by completing a faculty application. Candidates must attach a letter of interest, curriculum vita, and one publication or writing sample of no more than fifty pages. Three letters of recommendation are required and will be requested directly from your references through our employment system at the time your application is certified and submitted. Please have an accurate email for each of your references available to enter at the time of your application. Contact search co-chairs, Dr. Chandra Talpade Mohanty (ctmohant@syr.edu) or Dr. Robin Riley (rlriley@syr.edu) with any questions. We will begin screening applications on November 25. Position will remain open until filled.

Assistant Professor of Gender, Race, Culture, Science, and Technology
California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo
www.calpolyjobs.org (#103079)
The College of Liberal Arts at California Polytechnic State University seeks applications for a full-time (academic year), tenure-track assistant professor in gender, race, culture, science, and technology (GRCST) to begin September 15, 2014. Candidates must demonstrate the ability/potential to collaborate across disciplines and contribute to the curricular and scholarly development of the interdisciplinary area of GRCST. Although applications are sought from any traditional liberal arts discipline (arts, communications, humanities, social sciences) or interdisciplinary area, we are particularly interested in applicants with backgrounds in or connections to anthropology, ethnic studies, geography, philosophy, sociology, or women's and gender studies. Disciplinary expertise alone is not sufficient; that expertise must intersect in meaningful ways with science and technology.

www.endrape.msu.edu/teal-ribbon-award

This special award was created in 2008 to recognize outstanding campus units or academic departments promoting awareness and/or prevention of sexual violence in our community. Teal Ribbon Nomination Criteria: 1) Must be a campus department, office, academic unit, or student group. 2) Members of that department have been, or currently are, leaders in campus and/or community endeavors to address sexual violence. 3) Members of that department are involved in collaborative efforts on campus with respect to sexual violence programming. Teal Ribbon Nomination Process: Departments may be nominated by any member of the University community (students, faculty or staff). Complete a nomination form and submit the nomination form to Shari Murgittroyd, MSU Sexual Assault Program Coordinator, electronically at sharim@cc.msu.edu or through campus mail to 14 Student Services Building. For questions regarding the form or process, please contact Shari Murgittroyd at 355-9320 or sharim@cc.msu.edu.

Richard Lee Featherstone Endowed Prize
Michigan State University
Application Deadline: January 24, 5:00pm
The Richard Lee Featherstone Endowed Prize seeks to identify the most outstanding graduating senior, based on the criteria below, and to grant an award to be used for “future growth and development, travel, graduate study, or meditation.” In 2014, the amount awarded will be $4,000. Selection Criteria: 1) The award recipient must be a Michigan State University senior, majoring in any discipline, who is expected to graduate during 2014 (Spring, Summer, or Fall). 2) The award recipient will exhibit an open, curious, creative approach to education and ideas, and intellectual ingenuity will be evident. More weight will be given to intellectual curiosity and innovation than to grades attained, although a cumulative GPA above 3.0 is preferred. 3) The award recipient will have demonstrated exceptional character and leadership in furthering her/his own progress and in enriching the lives of others, especially in intellectual and international dimensions. She/he will have utilized innovative approaches in these efforts. A commitment to community service and to lifelong learning should be evident. Nomination Procedure: There is no nomination or application form. Each nomination packet should include: 1) One letter of nomination from a Michigan State University faculty or academic staff member and up to two additional letters in support of the nomination from Michigan State University faculty or academic staff members. 2) An essay or letter of not more than 1,000 words written by the student. The student's name, MSU Net ID, address, and telephone number must be included on the student's submission. 3) Student’s resume. The nomination letter, support letters, student essay, and student resume should address the ways in which the student exemplifies the award criteria. Specific examples of activities and achievements are especially helpful to the selection committee. Nomination packets, including the student’s essay and resume, should be delivered to the Office of the Associate Provost for Undergraduate Education and Dean of Undergraduate Studies, 312 Hannah Administration Building. Late applications will not be considered.
Finalists will be selected by a committee designated by the Board of Directors of the Featherstone Society in conjunction with the Associate Provost for Undergraduate Education and will be notified by February 21. Finalists’ interviews will be held on March 28.

Boston College’s African & African Diaspora Studies Program (AADS) announces its fifth dissertation fellowship competition. Scholars working in any discipline in the Social Sciences or Humanities, with projects focusing on any topic within African and/or African Diaspora Studies, are eligible. We seek applicants pursuing innovative, preferably interdisciplinary, projects in dialogue with critical issues and trends within the field. This 2014/2015 fellowship includes a $30,060 stipend; health insurance; a $1,500 research budget; and a fully equipped, shared office. The fellow must remain in residence for the 9-month academic year, deliver one public lecture, and teach one seminar course. The successful applicant will have full access to BC’s seven libraries as well as several rare books and manuscripts collections. Of particular interest is the Nicholas M. Williams/Caribbeana Collection, consisting of materials from and about Africa, Jamaica, and the British West Indies. The fellow can also benefit from BC’s newly founded Institute for the Liberal Arts, as well as events sponsored by programs/installations in International Studies, American Studies, Asian American Studies, Middle East Studies, Islamic Civilization and Societies, as well as the internationally renowned McMullen Museum. Submit all application materials, including letters of recommendation, via Interfolio. Applications must include: 1) a 3000 word project proposal that includes a plan for completion and description of how this fellowship will assist applicant in achieving future professional goals, 2) a 25 page MAXIMUM writing sample, 3) a CV, 4) three letters of recommendation, one of which must be from the dissertation advisor. Eligible applicants must be ABD by the start of the fellowship year. For more info, please visit www.bc.edu/aads.

Asian Studies Center Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowship
Michigan State University
Application Deadline: January 31
http://asia.isp.msu.edu/resources/flas.htm

The Asian Studies Center will award MSU graduate and undergraduate fellowships under the Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowship program of the U.S. Department of Education. The FLAS Fellowship program is designed to meet critical needs for specialists in American education, government, and other services of a public and/or professional nature who will utilize their skills in training others and in developing throughout the United States a wider knowledge and understanding of other countries and cultures. FLAS fellowships offer tuition payments of up to $18,000 per year (graduate), $10,000 per year (undergraduate), and a monthly stipend for each semester the award is held. The 2014-2105 FLAS academic year fellowship awards are subject to availability of funds from the U.S. Department of Education.

To be considered for fellowship support, all applicants must: 1) Be a citizen or national of the United States; a permanent resident of the United States; or a permanent resident of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. 2) Show potential for high academic achievement, as evidenced by such indices as grade point average or other measures. 3) Agree to pursue full time academic study at MSU and pursue a course of study that includes both language training and Asian Studies course work during the year in which they hold the fellowship. In addition, undergraduate fellows must be studying an Asian language at third year or above during the year in which they hold the fellowship. Graduate student fellows also must: 1) Have earned a baccalaureate or comparable degree before the fellowship period begins and be admitted to or currently enrolled in a graduate degree program at Michigan State University. 2) Study an Asian language in the course of completing an advanced graduate program (disciplinary, interdisciplinary, or professional; Ph.D. or Master's) at MSU with an Asia focus.

MLK Endowed Scholarship
Michigan State University
Application Deadline: February 28
http://www.inclusion.msu.edu/Outreach/MLKScholarshipInformation.html

The Martin Luther King, Jr. Endowed Scholarship Program recognizes MSU students who are, through their stewardship, becoming society’s leaders by actively engaging in their communities in ways that fight injustice and promote equality for all on every possible level. The MLK Endowed Scholarship will be awarded to qualified student applicants in accordance with normal procedures followed by the Offices of Admissions and Scholarships and Financial Aid. Unique to the MLK Scholarship, MLK scholars will be selected on the basis of the following: demonstrated leadership; commitment to the involvement with social change in communities; financial need; academic achievement; one full year of full-time study at MSU; current full-time status at MSU. In the application, students must provide a two-page typed personal statement in which they discuss their student leadership and extra-curricular activities and their involvement with social change in their communities, their financial need for the scholarship, and their career goals. Finally, student applicants are asked to respond to this question: "If you become a recipient of an MLK scholarship, consistent with the legacy of Dr. King, how will you contribute to communities in the future?"

Hodson Trust—John Carter Brown Fellowship
Washington College, C.V. Starr Center for the Study of the American Experience Application Deadline: March 14
www.washcoll.edu/centers/starr/hodson-brown-fellowship.php
The Hodson-Brown Fellowship supports work by academics, independent scholars and writers working on significant projects relating to the literature, history, culture, or art of the Americas before 1830. Candidates with a U.S. history topic are strongly encouraged to concentrate on the period prior to 1801. The fellowship is also open to filmmakers, novelists, creative and performing artists, and others working on projects that draw on this period of history. The 2014-2015 fellowship supports two months of research and two months of writing. The stipend is $5,000.00 per month for a total of $20,000.00, plus housing and university privileges. The research is conducted at the John Carter Brown Library on the campus of Brown University in Providence, R.I., which has one of the world’s richest collections of books, maps, and documents related to North and South America and the Caribbean between 1492 and 1830. The research must be completed within the academic year (September to May). Housing will be provided convenient to the library. The writing period of the fellowship will be at the Starr Center at Washington College in Chestertown, Md. The Starr Center is dedicated to innovative approaches to the nation’s past and present, and to fostering outstanding writing on American history and culture. The two-month writing term will be during the summer following the research term (June-August.) The Hodson Brown Fellow will be provided with an office in the Starr Center’s c. 1745 waterfront Custom House, as well as exclusive use of its Fellows’ Residence, a restored 1730’s house in Chestertown's historic district. (The house is large enough to accomodate a family.) Applications Should Include the Following: 1) A cover letter. 2) The applicant's curriculum vitae, including a list of past publications or other relevant projects, as well as the names and telephone numbers of at least three references. 3) At least one substantial sample of the candidate’s writing (published or unpublished) or other past work. 4) A brief narrative description of the work-in-progress, its potential contributions to history, literature, the arts, or our understanding of the present, and the candidate's plan for his or her fellowship terms in Providence and Chestertown. Candidates are encouraged to consult the John Carter Brown Library's collections online prior to submitting and application. Special consideration will be given to proposals discussing specific resources at the JCB that will be useful to the project.

MSU Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender http://gencen.isp.msu.edu/academics/graduate.htm/#specialization
http://gencen.isp.msu.edu/academics/documents/academics/Grad_Spec_WGS.pdf
The Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender is designed for completion by either Master's or doctoral students. The graduate specialization in Women and Gender is designed to foster the study of women and gender across disciplines and national borders, provide opportunities for graduate students to obtain a comprehensive, cross/interdisciplinary academic experience in women and gender, and to foster the growth of interdisciplinary research and teaching on women and gender. Emphasis is given to understanding the diversity of women's lives nationally and globally. The graduate specialization is open to graduate students with adequate undergraduate preparation in women and gender. The specialization should complement advanced, discipline-based degrees by providing an interdisciplinary, feminist component. All students are encouraged to develop competence in the foreign language most relevant to their field of work and area of interest.

MSU Undergraduate Specialization in Bioethics, Humanities, and Society
http://bioethics.msu.edu/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=202&Itemid=29
This program strives to serve students who seek to broaden their understanding of health and healing by drawing on several disciplinary perspectives, including philosophy, history, literature, anthropology, sociology, and others. We commonly find that, among others, many pre-professional students (pre-nursing, pre-dental, pre-medical, and pre-public health) are interested in our program.

MA in Women’s History at Sarah Lawrence College
