

Gendered Perspectives on International Development

Call for Papers

Gendered Perspectives on International Development (GPID) is a peer-reviewed series of scholarly work on global social, political, and economic change and its gendered effects in developing nations. GPID cross-cuts disciplines, bringing together research, critical analyses, and proposals for change. GPID recognizes diverse processes of international development and globalization, and new directions in scholarship on gender relations.

The goals of GPID are:

- 1) to promote research that contributes to gendered analysis of social change;
- 2) to highlight the effects of international development policy and globalization on gender roles and gender relations; and
- 3) to encourage new approaches to international development policy and programming.

GPID Working Papers are article-length manuscripts (9000-word maximum) by scholars from a broad range of disciplines, disseminating materials at a late stage of formulation that contribute new understandings of gendered roles and relations amidst economic, social, and political change. Individual papers in the series address a range of topics, such as: gender, violence, and human rights; gender and agriculture; reproductive health and healthcare; gender and social movements; masculinities and development; and the gendered division of labor. We particularly encourage manuscripts that bridge the gap between research, policy, and practice.

Previously published WID and GPID Working Papers are freely available and can be viewed online at gencen.msu.edu/papers.

If you are interested in submitting a manuscript to the GPID Working Papers, please send a 150-word abstract summarizing the paper's essential points, methods, and findings to Dr. Wenda Bauchspies, Editor, or Kelly Birch Maginot, Managing Editor, at papers@msu.edu. If the abstract suggests your paper is suitable for the GPID Working Papers, the full paper will be invited for peer review and publication consideration.

Please note that authors retain the copyright to their papers and are encouraged to publish their papers in other journals.