

Gender, Women's Suffrage, and Political Power

Past, Present, and Future
November 19-21, 2020 | Radisson - Lansing at the Capitol

Call for Student Presentations

Have you written a research paper or completed a project on topics relating to gender, sexuality, or women's issues?

Have you been involved with a activism-focused student org?

Have you created a presentation on women's political power?

We are seeking presentation proposals from both undergraduate and graduate students for the Gender, Women's Suffrage, and Political Power (GWSPP) Conference! GWSPP is an opportunity to add a conference experience to your resume, grow as a researcher and student, and network with academics from around the world.

Presentations do not have to be traditionally academic, and may come in a variety of formats (including posters). Topics don't have to be narrowly focused on suffrage or voting rights. Some other topics include: inequality, women's rights, political participation, citizenship, intersecting identities (i.e. gender and race, class, sexuality, etc.).

Interested in submitting a proposal?

Visit the GWSPP website (gencen.msu.edu/GWSPP) or contact our organizers at gwsppconference@gmail.com.
