Welcome!

In this course we will explore topics, questions, and approaches that characterize the rapidly growing field of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer studies and its relationship to the lives of LGBTQ people and to society more broadly, including a global perspective. We will use interdisciplinary approaches that incorporate race, class, gender, and space as analytical categories alongside sexuality, we will look at the tools LGBTQ studies offer for understanding power and culture.

Goals

1) Learn a lot
2) Have a blast
3) Get enthused about LGBTQ life, culture, and activism
4) Leave this class excited to engage with the LGBTQ studies in multiple ways

After taking this class, students will...

- learn the meaning, significance, and history of key terms
- acquire a familiarity with the history of social movements involving sexuality and gender
- learn to analyze and contextualize representations of LGBTQ people in the media, popular culture, and politics
- be able to define key concepts in the study of sexuality, including heteronormativity and homonormativity, and learn to use them to critically analyze contemporary society
- grasp current concerns of LGBTQ people in the U.S. and around the globe, including continuing debates around same-sex marriage, hate crimes, and transgender inclusion
Texts

• Additional readings, viewings, and listenings as assigned

Be sure to purchase the correct edition!

If you choose to do the Film Review Response Paper, you will also need to borrow, rent, or stream one LGBTQ-themed film for that assignment, due November 8th.

Special Policies

• This is a screen-free class. No laptops, phones, tablets, etc. Occasional exceptions, as noted.
• Bring hard copies of all assigned readings and any other relevant materials to every class.
• Unless otherwise noted, all projects should be posted to individual blogs before class and/or are due in hard copy at the beginning of class; the mini posts are due via your website only.

Assignments & Mini Exams

Participation
Because readings and supplementary visual and audio media will make up the backbone of our conversations, you are expected to come to each class prepared to explore, defend, and critique them. Your participation grade will be based on regular participation and engagement in classroom discussions, and any in-class writing assignments.

Team Media Presentation
In teams of 2 or 3, students will present to the class one short news report (published in print or posted online within the last three months), analyzing both the substantive news conveyed in the report and also the way in which the report represents sexuality, gender, and/or LGBTQ identities. You will be assigned to a Team and expected to present on the date indicated in the syllabus. Presentations should run about 20 minutes total, 12 minutes to 15 minutes for initial sharing and 5 to 8 minutes allowed for class discussion and Q&A.

Response Papers
You will do 2 response papers chosen from the following 4 options and due on the dates indicated. More detailed instructions for each option will be posted to D2L.

- Option A – Queer History Report: You will find and read a scholarly article about some aspect of LGBTQ history and write a 3- to 4-page assessment. Due September 18th.
- Option B – 7 Miles a Second Analysis: You will write a 3- to 4-page analysis of the David Wojnarowicz comic book 7 Miles a Second. Due September 25th.
- Option C – Film Review: You will select and view a film with significant LGBTQ content (mainstream or queer) and write a 3- to 4-page review. Due October 30th.
- Option D – Queer Space Field Observation: You will visit a location identified as an LGBTQ place and write a 3- to 4-page account of your observations. Due November 20th.

Mini Exams
Rather than a midterm and a final, we will have three short (½-hour) exams over the course of the semester. Each mini-exam will cover course material from the thematic units covered immediately prior to that exam and will consist of either identifications or a single essay question. All students must bring an exam book to class to write the examinations.

Research Paper
Each student will select a topic in LGBTQ studies for an individual 8- to 10-page research paper based on primary or scholarly secondary sources. A one- to two-sentence statement of your topic is due October 4th. A one-page proposal for your paper is due October 18th. The paper itself is due the last day of class, December 6th. More detailed guidelines will be distributed in class and posted to D2L.

Extra Credit
You have the opportunity to earn extra credit by attending a onetime outside event or exhibition and writing a short (1- to 2-page) response. Possible options for this extra credit include events posted through the LBGT Resource Center (http://lbgtrc.msu.edu/events-calendar), as well as events and exhibits held away from East Lansing.

Attendance Policy

Attendance is required in every class this semester. That’s because in a seminar like this, it’s not only you who misses out when you’re not there: the class itself changes. The experience of everyone is richest when everyone is present, everyone is prepared, and everyone participates. If you attend every class, you’ll get Perfect Attendance Extra Credit, with two points added to your final average. However, for every class you miss after the first two, two points will be subtracted from your final average.
Special Needs

Students who require special assistance with any aspect of this course are encouraged to see me as early in the semester as possible to make necessary accommodations.

Quizzes

Over the semester I will give six quizzes, a mix of reading and preparation quizzes. Quizzes will not be announced in advance. For the preparation quizzes, you get a full 5 points if you have a hard copy of all assigned readings with you, and a 0 if you don’t. Likewise, the reading quizzes will consist of one or two questions that should be easy if you did the reading and impossible if you didn’t. You cannot make up a quiz, but at the end of the semester I will drop your lowest grade. If you get 5 points on all six of the quizzes, then you will get an extra 5 points on your final average.

Academic Honesty

Plagiarism will not be tolerated. Any use of someone else’s ideas or words without proper acknowledgment of credit, will result in serious penalties up to and including a failing course grade. All students should be familiar with the university’s Policies, Regulations and Ordinances Regarding Academic Honesty and Integrity (https://www.msu.edu/~ombud/academic-integrity/index.html).

A word about email

Email calls for a different writing style than text messages, especially when you’re writing to a professor or professional contact. Here are a few general guidelines: You should start by addressing the person you’re writing by name. Use a greeting, just like you would in real life: “Hello Dr. Retzloff,” “Hi Prof. Retzloff,” “Dear Professor Retzloff”—anything in that ballpark is great. If you write simply “Dear Professor” don’t be surprised by a response of “Dear Student.”

When you’re signing off (and this is even more important), you must say who you are. Your name is all it takes, and if you sign off with “Thank you,” or “Sincerely,” or something like that, even better. If you’re asking a question (and especially if you’re asking a favor), please remember to use a question mark. Use words like “please” and “thank you” when appropriate. In general, remember your manners on email just as you would in person.
