GenCen Co-Director Position Searches Announced

Co-Director of Academic Programs application review begins February 23

Co-Director of International Research Engagement application review begins March 9

ISP is conducting a search for two new Co-Directors at GenCen this semester. The search for the Academic Programs-focused position will be internal. The search for the International Research-focused position will be simultaneously internal and external. The Search Committee plans to conduct formal campus interviews for the Academic Programs position during March and for the International Research position during April.

Members of the Search Committee are: Fred Rauscher (Assoc. Dean, CAL), Emine Evered (History), Kristie Dotson (Philosophy), Leo Zulu (Geography), Andrea Allen (CASID), Amy Jamison (GenCen), and Laurie Medina (Latin American and Caribbean Studies/Anthropology).

GenCen is headed by Co-Directors. One (Academic Programs, Outreach and Engagement), is primarily responsible for developing and managing the College of Arts and Letters Major and Minor in Women's and Gender Studies, the Graduate Specialization in Gender Studies, the LGBTQ minor, and outreach to community and women's organizations. The other Co-Director (International Research and Engagement) is responsible for promoting gender-related research and outreach across the campus and for fostering faculty-led international partnerships with other women's and gender studies programs around the globe.

How to apply for the Co-Director of Academic Programs position: For consideration, please go to www.jobs.msu.edu, search for posting 2733 and follow the application process. Interested individuals should submit a cover letter, a CV, up to 3 relevant publications. Applicants should also have 3 letters of reference emailed to the search committee chair, medina@msu.edu. Review of applications will begin on February 23, 2016, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

How to apply for the Co-Director of International Research Engagement position: For consideration, please go to www.jobs.msu.edu, search for posting 2734 and follow the application process. Interested individuals should submit a cover letter, a CV, up to 3 relevant publications. Applicants should also have 3 letters of reference emailed to the search committee chair, medina@msu.edu. Review of applications will begin on March 9, 2016, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Find GenCen on Facebook

GenCen has an active Facebook Group (www.facebook.com/groups/MSUGenCen/), which is a great way to get more local, national, and international news items of gender-related interest, all on your Facebook News Feed. It is also a great way to network among students, staff and faculty, and it is more informal than the monthly GenCen Digest. We encourage all of our members to post relevant content in our group and share comments! We also have an "official" Page (www.facebook.com/MSUGenCen), where we post our events and other items of GenCen/MSU-related interest. Feel free to "like" us to stay up-to-date!

MSU Student Academic Year & Summer Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowships

Application Deadline: February 5

<http://casid.isp.msu.edu/academic/fellowships.htm>

The FLAS Fellowship program is for students combining the study of a modern foreign language with training in international development studies or in the international development aspects of professional or other fields of study. Awards will be made in the following languages: Arabic, French, Indonesian, Korean, Portuguese, Swahili, Tamil, Turkish, Vietnamese, Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, Persian/Farsi, Russian, Spanish, Thai, Uzbek, Zulu. It supports students interested in issues related (but not limited) to the following: Global Food, Agriculture, and Environment; Livelihood Strategies, Economics, and Governance; Education and Health Disparities; Violence, Conflict, and Conflict Resolution; and Identities, Representations, and Human Rights. FLAS meets a critical need for specialists in American education, government, and other services of a public and/or professional nature who will utilize their skills to develop a wider knowledge and understanding of other countries and cultures. Undergraduate awards are worth up to $15,000 per academic year. Graduate awards are worth up to $33,000 per academic year. Summer awards are worth up to $7,500. FLAS eligibility requirements and application materials are available online. Questions regarding the program should be directed to Jennifer Brewer at brewer13@isp.msu.edu.

Feminist Research Methodology Graduate Community, Friday meeting series

February 26, 3:00-5:00pm, 204 International Center

March 25, 3:00-5:00pm, 204 International Center

April 22, 3:00-5:00pm, 305 International Center

The Feminist Research Methodology Graduate Community (FRM) is an open and supportive environment for graduate students interested in feminist research methodology and professional development. Utilizing an interdisciplinary approach, we welcome graduate students from all academic backgrounds who are seeking additional resources in the arenas of feminist epistemologies, feminist research methodologies, and manners in which we can incorporate them into our research. The goals and objectives of the Feminist Research Methodology Graduate Community are to first and foremost serve as a supportive environment for discussing feminist methodologies, asking questions related to feminist research, and receiving helpful feedback from members. The FRM also provides a safe space that positively facilitates reading, writing, peer review, and research analysis from a feminist perspective. Additionally, FRM also acts as a networking system across multiple academic disciplines and aims to provide members with useful resources. Please contact Allison Colby (alisonrcolby@gmail.com) if you are interested in more details.

Visionary Daughtering: An Intimate Intellectual and Activist Archive

February 12

3:00pm, Wells Hall B-342

This interactive lecture will activate the concept of Visionary Daughtering as a description of the ongoing co-construction of freedom between/as black women and girls. Drawing on her research in the archival papers of Audre Lorde, June Jordan, Lucille Clifton, Toni Cade Bambara, and Cheryll Y. Greene, her innovative approach to reading the scribbled notes in the margins and on the title pages of black feminist books as a form of black feminist intellectual correspondence, and her own experience of daughter intellectual subjectivity, Sista Docta Alexis Pauline Gumbs will lead us in a conversation about longing, Alexis Pauline Gumbs honors revolutionary mothering, cultivates visionary daughtering, and practices radical sistering in Durham, NC. She is the founder of the Eternal Summer of the Black Feminist Mind intergalactic community school, the co-creator of the Mobile Homecoming experiential archive of black queer brilliance and the provost of Brilliance Remastered, a transformative space to support and connect community accountable intellectuals. Alexis is the co-editor of Revolutionary Mothering: Love on the Front Lines (PM Press) and the author of the forthcoming Spill: Scenes of possibility, exile, communion and intergenerational resistance and love. Black Feminist Fugitivity (Duke University Press, fall 2016).

Women's Studies in London Summer '16 Study Abroad Info Session

February 17

6:00pm, 201 International Center

Come learn about the WS in London summer study abroad program, and have free pizza and pop from Pizza House! The Women's Studies in London program offers the opportunity to study feminism across the Atlantic. London is a perfect setting for cross-cultural and cross-disciplinary investigation into British women's writings and culture, feminist movements, and feminist theories and perspectives. The program is also an opportunity to explore and discover how your own travel affects your sense of gender and of yourself as a gendered subject. Who are we? How can cross-cultural study and experience help us ask and respond to questions of subjectivity with creativity and compassion? Program Dates: July 4-August 1. Application Deadline: March 15. Program credits: 7 (with optional additional Independent Study credits). Enrolled courses will be WS491 (3cr) Women Writing & Travel: Gender on the Move; and IAH241C (4cr) Feminists across the Atlantic: Building a More Radical Movement from 1840-Present; with an optional WS490 (2-5cr) Independent Study. For more information, contact Professor Nancy Dejoy (dejoy@msu.edu).

Redefining Rape: Sexual Violence in the Era of Suffrage and Segregation

March 21

3:00-5:00pm, 303 International Center

www.facebook.com/events/514770658705286/

Throughout American history, rape has contributed to the meaning of citizenship and aspiring citizens have repeatedly tried to redefine rape. Estelle Freedman explores the efforts of both women's rights and racial justice advocates who tried to change legal and cultural constructions of sexual violence in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Those who tried to revise the meaning of rape helped undermine both coverture and white supremacy, but they did so in the face of intense external resistance and often contradictory internal politics, which continue to influence modern anti-rape movements.

Estelle B. Freedman is the Edgar E. Robinson Professor in U.S. History at Stanford University and a co-founder of the undergraduate Program in Feminist, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The recipient of multiple teaching awards and national research fellowships, she has written or edited ten books, including No Turning Back: The History of Feminism and the Future of Women, The Essential Feminist Reader, and (with John D'Emilio) Intimate Matters: A History of Sexuality in America. Her most recent book, Redefining Rape: Sexual Violence in the Era of Suffrage and Segregation, won the Darlene Clark Hine Award in African American women's and gender history from the Organization of American Historians.

This Women's History Month event will be co-sponsored by GenCen, History, and others to-be-announced.

GPID Editors' Series event: Challenges Confronted by Women Vegetable Farmers in Tanzania as They Struggle to Support Families and Feed the Nation

April 1

3:00-5:00pm, 303 International Center

Cathy A. Rakowski, Associate Professor of Rural Sociology and Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies and Adjunct Associate Professor of Social Work from The Ohio State University will be giving a special presentation as part of GenCen's GPID Editors' Series. She holds an adjunct position with the College of Social Work and is core faculty in the Latin American Studies Graduate Program. For over ten years in the 1990s and early 2000s, she chaired OSU-WID, the Ohio State University Association for Women in Development (established in 1986) and the university's campus Fulbright Committee. She is a member of GenCen's GPID Working Papers Editorial Board. As a sociologist and feminist scholar, her research and teaching interests focus on processes of social and environmental change and inequality, particularly related to "development" and corporate interventions. Much of her research has focused on Venezuela, where she lived and worked off and on between 1969 and 1998. She also has conducted research in Mexico, India, Senegal, Uganda, and Tanzania. Most recently, she has been involved in USAID-funded curriculum initiatives at universities in India and Tanzania.

SANDRA KIM—Everyday Feminism

April 12

6:30-8:00pm, Kellogg Center Auditorium (219 S Harrison Rd)

Sandra Kim is the Founder & Publisher of the world-famous virtual magazine, Everyday Feminism (www.everydayfeminism.com), whose mission is "to help people heal from and stand up to everyday violence, discrimination, and marginalization through applied intersectional feminism." She will be speaking at MSU as part of the MSU Women's Resource Center's Gender & Its Intersections Series on "Building Inclusive Leadership to Develop Anti-Oppression Work Environments." Kim's talk will be a call to action to effectively and boldly do this work at an institution like MSU. This event is FREE and open to all. Questions? Contact WRC at 517-353-1635 or wrc@msu.edu. GenCen is one of the co-sponsors for this important event.

Education Reform and Gender: What Gets "Disrupted" and What Stays the Same

Presented by Margaret Crocco, College of Education

www.facebook.com/events/109233742077796/

This presentation focuses on the gendered nature of educational reform in the United States and the resilience of the gendered divide between the reformers and those reformed over the last one hundred years.

The presentation will contrast two eras of seismic educational reform in the United States—one from the early 20th century and the other from the early 21st century—to consider how creative patriarchy can be in reinventing itself to maintain status discrepancies between men and women even as women’s roles change and women appear to be making “progress” towards greater authority and power within the domain. The presentation concludes with attention to one of the prominent educational reform approaches, ed-tech, and the ways in which this sector, like that of tech generally, is a highly masculine space despite the overwhelming dominance of women as teachers and, increasingly, as school administrators today.

Presented by Nathalie Me-Nsope, Department of Agricultural, Food & Resource Economics

April 22

Implementing Culturally Adapted Parenting Interventions with Low Income Latino/a Parents: Addressing Cultural and Gender Challenges

Presented by Ruben Parra-Cardona, Department of Human Development & Family Studies/Research Consortium on Gender-Based Violence

Taiwan Film Festival

March 22, 107 S Kedzie, Spring Cactus; director Huang Yu-shan Q/A

March 23, 105 S Kedzie, Taste of Life; director Huang Yu-shan Q/A

March 28, B122 Wells, The Assassin; director Hou Hsiao-hsien

April 11, 107 S Kedzie, Murmur of Youth; director Lin Cheng-sheng Q/A

April 12, 109 S Kedzie, Betelnut Beauty; director Lin Cheng-sheng Q/A

The films have strong gender themes, with four of the five focusing on women's identities, sexuality, or entrepreneurial ambitions. Spring Cactus is the fictionalized account of a true story of a girl who was involved in juvenile delinquency, became a prostitute, and killed herself at age 28. Taste of Life follows a restaurant hostess as her expectations of her life are shattered as she discovers her husband has been having an affair. The Assassin tells the story of a female assassin in tenth-century China. Murmur of Youth is a film about two girls who works together in a movie theatre box office and have a brief romantic fling—which means more to one of them than the other. Betelnut Beauty follows a girl who runs away from home to sell betelnuts (which can produce a mild high) and gets involved in Taipei’s criminal underground, though she longs for a career in show business. This year Taiwan has elected its first female president (the first female state leader in a Chinese-speaking country or region), so the gender-focused theme of this festival is timely.

This series is co-sponsored by Asian Studies, GenCen, Linguistics & Languages, Film Studies, GSAH, The China Experience at MSU, Taipei Cultural Center in New York, and Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in Chicago.

Institutional Campus Climate Study: Exploring Bias at MSU (Student Survey)

<http://inclusion.msu.edu/campus-climate-study>

<http://inclusion.msu.edu/campusclimatephotos>

This assessment is the tool that the university is going to use to develop an inclusion plan for the future. It is important that as many students as possible complete this survey. Assessing our campus climate allows us to understand how individuals experience their identities, including race, ethnicity, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, disability, faith tradition, veteran status, and student-athlete status, in the context of campus and community; and helps us measure students’ ability to learn, thrive, persist, and graduate from MSU. This is the first student climate study that the university is conducting, and is an opportunity for student voices to be heard—there is an opportunity in the survey to sign up for further focus group sessions. Every student who participates in a focus group will receive $5 in Sparty Bucks, and every student who completes the survey will be entered into a drawing for a $100 Amazon gift card with 10 randomly-selected winners. Questions? Contact Genyne Royal, royalgen@msu.edu.

How to be Assertive Without Seeming Aggressive

February 5

3:00-4:00pm, MSU Union, MOSAIC: Multicultural Unity Center Conference Room (2nd floor)

It is becoming more common to see women in leadership roles around the world – as presidents, CEOs, heads of households, etc. It is an exciting time to harness our leadership potential, but it doesn't come without its challenges. Women in positions of power are still called the "b" word (bossy) instead of words like "strong leader", or "aggressive" rather than "assertive." This seminar will focus on overcoming negative attitudes about women in leadership positions, at a university and in the workplace. Presenter: Angela Levack Michael, Assistant Director, MSU Recreational Sports & Fitness Services. Hosted by the Women's Initiative for Leadership Development. RSVP to the MSU Women's Resource Center at wrc@msu.edu or 517-353-1635 by February 4.

TOWN HALL: Relationship Violence & Sexual Misconduct: Moving MSU's Prevention and Response Efforts Forward

February 8

4:00-6:00pm, MSU Union Ballroom (2nd Floor)

Please join us in an in-depth conversation to inform efforts on MSU's campus in raising awareness and improving response to relationship violence and sexual misconduct. This conversation is being hosted by the university's Sexual Violence Advisory Committee, with the goal of gathering input from students, faculty, and staff to aid the committee in providing recommendations to MSU's new Title IX Coordinator. The conversation will include small group discussions about four critical questions, facilitated by small group moderators; the small group discussions will be followed by a moderated large group conversation. Additional opportunities to provide input through office hours and focus groups will be offered by the Title IX Coordinator throughout the spring 2016 semester.

The four critical questions to be discussed include:

*Are there are areas on campus experiencing a particularly hostile environment and/or climate related to relationship violence and sexual misconduct?

*How is relationship violence and sexual violence affecting diverse communities on campus?

*How do you understand your rights in reporting and receiving services for relationship violence and sexual misconduct?

*What are your most innovative ideas to further augment the university's efforts to increase awareness and improve response to relationship violence and sexual misconduct?

MSU students, faculty and staff are encouraged to attend! Pizza and beverages provided! No RSVP's necessary.

Tested Film Screening and Discussion

February 8

7:00-9:00pm, Erickson Hall Kiva

Join MSU's Asian Pacific American Studies Program for a screening of Tested followed by a discussion with the film's Director, Curtis Chin, and distinguished MSU faculty. The gap in opportunities for different races in America remains extreme. Nowhere is this more evident than our nation's top public schools. In New York City, where blacks and Hispanics make up 70% of the city's school-aged population, they represent less than 5% at the city's most elite public high schools. Meanwhile Asian Americans make up as much as 73%. This documentary follows a dozen racially and socioeconomically diverse 8th graders as they fight for a seat at one of these schools. Their only way in: to ace a single standardized test. Tested includes the voices of such education experts as Pedro Noguera and Diane Ravitch as it explores such issues as access to a high-quality public education, affirmative action, and the model-minority myth.

WKAR Film Screening: The Black Panthers: Vanguard of the Revolution

February 11

7:00pm, Comm Arts Auditorium (Room 145), 404 Wilson Rd

<http://wkar.org/post/feb-11-black-panthers-indie-lens-pop-film-screening>
www.facebook.com/events/1657579624498559/

This event is free, but registration is required (reserve seats at the WKAR website above). The film by award-winning filmmaker Stanley Nelson tells the story of the Black Panther Party for Self-Defense, which sought to transform a system of racial oppression. This is the first feature-length documentary to explore the Black Panther Party, its significance to the broader American culture, its cultural and political awakening for black people, and the painful lessons wrought when a movement derails. Nelson goes straight to the source, weaving a treasure trove of rare archival footage with the voices of the people who were there: police, FBI informants, journalists, white supporters and detractors, and Black Panthers who remained loyal to the party and those who left it. Joining us for Q&A will be guest panelists who will comment on the film from both historical and personal perspectives, as well as the local issues related to the film.

Women's Studies in London Summer '16 Study Abroad Info Session

February 17

6:00pm, 201 International Center

Come learn about the WS in London summer study abroad program, and have free pizza and pop from Pizza House! The Women's Studies in London program offers the opportunity to study feminism across the Atlantic. London is a perfect setting for cross-cultural and cross-disciplinary investigation into British women's writings and culture, feminist movements, and feminist theories and perspectives. The program is also an opportunity to explore and discover how your own travel affects your sense of gender and of yourself as a gendered subject. Who are we? How can cross-cultural study and experience help us ask and respond to questions of subjectivity with creativity and compassion? Program Dates: July 1-August 1. Application Deadline: March 15. Program credits: 7 (with optional additional Independent Study credits). Enrolled courses will be WS491 (3cr) Women Writing & Travel: Gender on the Move; and IAH241C (4cr) Feminists across the Atlantic: Building a More Radical Movement from 1840-Present; with an optional WS490 (2-5cr) Independent Study. For more information, contact Professor Nancy Dejoy (dejoy@msu.edu).

Sex comes to the Bastille: The Marquis de Sade and the French Revolution

March 3

4:30-5:50pm, Green Room, MSU Main Library

Presented by Ronen Steinberg, Department of History. On July 3 1789, a little after midnight, several men entered a cell in the infamous prison of the Bastille and snatched a prisoner who was sleeping there. They hurled him into a coach waiting nearby and drove him, naked, to the insane asylum at Charenton. This prisoner was the Marquis de Sade. Ten days later, the people of Paris would storm the Bastille in one of the most memorable days in modern history, thus beginning, in effect, the French Revolution. This talk examines the relationship between the Marquis de Sade and the French Revolution. As a nobleman, he was suspect. As the author of scandalous works, he had a good chance of ending up on the guillotine. Yet as a committed troublemaker, he must have loved the glimpse of anarchy that the Revolution afforded to contemporaries. In this talk, we will follow the Marquis' multiple brushes with the Revolution. We will examine what he thought about its politics. And we will look for the traces of its dramas and disappointments in his writings. EVENT CONTACT: Valentina Denzel, vdenzel@msu.edu. Refreshments will be served.

Cybernetic Sade

March 31

4:30-5:50pm, Green Room, MSU Main Library

Presented by Ellen McCallum, Department of English. The Marquis de Sade's texts frequently offer rather striking appeals to nature, as if nature offers some sort of outside or counter-law to social law. But his claims about nature develop in tension with an Enlightenment commitment to reason as well as an almost machinic vision of sexuality, exemplified by his complexly orchestrated orgies. What's queer about Sade is his exposition of a kind of cybernetics avant la lettre. This proto-cybernetics is integral both to Sade's social critique and to the interconnections of nature and reason in his work. Where Sade privileges reciprocal or at least reversible and dynamic relations, where he appeals to multiple connections and impersonal sociality, he demarcates the modern world of cybernetic networks and human/machine hybrids. Sade's 18th-century visions of control and communication resonate in the 20th century readings of his work by Marcel Hénaff, Roland Barthes, Leo Bersani, and Kathy Acker. My talk will explore how these thinkers' attention to the questions of bodies and pleasures lays out for us a view of cybernetic Sade. EVENT CONTACT: Valentina Denzel, vdenzel@msu.edu. Refreshments will be served.

University Undergraduate Research and Arts Forum (UURAF)

April 8

9:00am-5:00pm, MSU Union

Registration Deadline: Friday, February 19, 11:59pm

UURAF is an opportunity for students to showcase their scholarship and creative activity to the University community in a conference-like venue. Students present their work to faculty judges in an oral, poster, or performance presentation. Students need to register by the deadline. Registration and other detailed information can be found at the website above. The opportunities for student participation are very broad. Last year, nearly 750 students presented 518 programs at the event. It was an impressive display of student scholarship and talent.

23rd Annual Día de la Mujer Conference

April 9

8:00am-5:00pm, Kellogg Center, MSU

www.facebook.com/events/1642580462686775/

The Día de la Mujer Conference began in 1994 to highlight the accomplishments of Latina women in our community. Since that time DDLM has grown into a multi-faceted series of workshops focusing on education, health, political, inter-personal relationships, culture, personal development, and self-empowerment for Latinas of all ages and backgrounds. Our conference goals are to empower, motivate, inspire, connect and support Latinas and all women in their quest for advancement in society. DDLM is also an excellent opportunity for non-Latinos, who are interested in learning about the beliefs, views, and way of life in the Latino community. DDLM recognizes that there is value in difference and is an excellent cross-cultural experience for all who take advantage of the opportunity. DDLM is open to all regardless of ethnic background. We encourage everyone to attend and participate in all that DDLM has to offer. DDLM is open and inclusive of all who value diversity and wish to learn about the growing Latino community. Attendance is FREE for MSU students!

MSU's 4th Annual Workshop on Food Justice: Bringing Theory and Practice Together

May 13-14

<http://workshoponfoodjustice.com/call-for-proposals/>

Food justice is a growing movement that has inspired both on-the-ground community projects and theoretical articulations across multiple disciplines. This workshop aims to help scholars and practitioners identify and address the challenges and opportunities in food justice. The 2016 workshop will include scholarly talks and visits to local environmental justice projects. The workshop is intended as a transdisciplinary space to forge connections between theories and between theory and practice, and papers should be accessible to a public audience. Previous papers have been informed by disciplines such as anthropology, critical race studies, disability studies, indigenous studies, economics, gender and sexuality studies, geography, history, literary criticism, philosophy, religious studies, sociology, and the human dimensions of agricultural and environmental sciences. Please direct any questions to workshopenfoodjustice@gmail.com.

State News Article of Interest: "Four women file Title IX lawsuit against MSU, aim to bring attention to national issue"

<http://statenews.com/article/2015/11/four-women-file-tite-ix-lawsuit-against-msu>

"Four women filed a Title IX civil lawsuit against MSU, President Lou Anna K. Simon, and Vice President of Student Services Denise Maybank over complaints about how their sexual assault cases were handled during their time as students at MSU. The lawsuit, filed Wednesday morning, is seeking economic damages, but no dollar amount was specified in the copy of the case file. Of the four, two women were named. Emily Kollaritsch, who said she is a fifth-year senior, was an outspoken advocate for sexual assault survivor's rights and resources during her time on campus. Her case, detailed in a State News investigation, took 285 days for the university to resolve, far exceeding the time limits set by the federal government and MSU's own self-governing guidelines. ... The lawsuit also details the events which defendant and advertising student Shayna Gross said happened to her while visiting the Kappa Sigma fraternity house on campus. Gross explained her case took nearly 485 days and two investigations, and said MSU's investigative process "has caused me harm and delivered me absolutely no justice." During the press conference, it was revealed the same alleged assailant assaulted both Gross and Kollaritsch." A copy of the lawsuit is available at the website."

MSU Student Services Article of Interest: “Greeks Take the Lead on Ending Sexual Assault on Campus”

<http://studentaffairs.msu.edu/news/sarv-greeks-take-lead.html>

“Greeks Take the Lead is an interactive training program that was developed by MSU’s Sexual Assault and Relationship Violence Prevention Program (SARV) in partnership with the Interfraternity Council (IFC), Multicultural Greek Council, National Pan-Hellenic Council, and Panhellenic Council, to bring the MSU Greek community to the forefront of sexual assault prevention. Kelly Schweda, program coordinator for SARV, hopes that a program like this will provide a dynamic approach to addressing sexual assault—one that will cause a “wave effect of mentorship within the Greek system.”... The Greeks Take the Lead training session includes an hour-long interactive workshop that informs participants about creating a safe space for fellow students, how to handle sexual assault if it happens, and how to best support victims of sexual assault. According to Schweda, certain aspects of the workshop are interchangeable to accommodate the diverse set of fraternities and sororities that are housed here at MSU. ... Ultimately, it is the intention that all MSU Greek Life organizations will participate in Greeks Take the Lead by the end of the 2016 spring semester, according to Schweda. In addition to contributing to the elimination of sexual assault on campus through the leadership of fraternities and sororities, the SARV leader said she hopes that participation in this training will encourage more students to apply to be SARV peer educators and to continue to pass this dialogue on to incoming freshman next fall. For more information on Greeks Take the Lead, SARV, or on becoming a SARV mentor, contact Kelly Schweda schweda@vps.msu.edu, call 517-355-8286, or visit <http://sarv.msu.edu/>.”

PrideSource Article of Interest: “Remembering the History of Michigan's LGBT Ballot Fights”

Published by GenCen/History faculty member Tim Retzloff

www.pridesource.com/article.html?article=74900

“In recent months, the group Fair Michigan launched an effort to guarantee protections for sexual orientation and gender identity within the Michigan constitution by means of a statewide initiative slated for the November 2016 ballot. A number of critics have asserted that whenever LGBT rights are put before voters, such measures always fail. This claim is not only inaccurate, it also masks a complicated, and perhaps promising, history of past referendum battles.”

Humans Uniting for an Equal Society (HUES)

Meetings held 2nd Tuesday monthly—February 9

7:00pm, 2019 E Michigan Ave, Lansing, MI 48912(New location)

www.facebook.com/humansuniting / <http://twitter.com/humansuniting1>

At February's meeting, we're going to be discussing the impact of homelessness within the LGBTQ community, particularly amongst young queer individuals. Humans Uniting for an Equal Society's (HUES) is a new social organization for teens and young adults in the Greater Lansing area partnered with LAHR (Lansing Association for Human Rights, <http://lahronline.org/>), which focuses on being an inclusive space for LGBTQIA identity. If you are an expert, attend and lend your voice! If you are a newbie, don't sweat it, we're here to help strengthen your identity and allyship skills. We're all learning together. Allies to the queer community are welcome! HUES seeks to: stimulate discussion of LGBTQIA issues beyond marriage equality; provide community and space for LGBTQIA youth through events and gatherings; educate the community on LGBTQIA history, culture, and language; and increase youth membership of LAHR. HUES are also looking for folk who are interested in taking on leadership positions. The entire executive board is open.

Revisiting Not Without My Daughter with Mahtob Mahmoody

February 11

7:00pm, Schuler Books, Meridian Mall, Okemos

www.facebook.com/events/1670775556503457/

Two decades ago, millions of readers worldwide thrilled to the story told in the international bestseller Not Without My Daughter—subsequently made into a film starring Sally Field—that told of an American mother and her six-year-old child's daring escape from an abusive and tyrannical Iranian husband and father. Now the daughter returns to tell the whole story, not only of that imprisonment and escape but of life after fleeing Tehran: living in fear of re-abduction, enduring recurring nightmares and panic attacks, attending school under a false name, battling life-threatening illness—all under the menacing shadow of her father. This is the story of an extraordinary young woman's triumph over life-crushing trauma to build a life of peace and forgiveness. Taking readers from Grand Rapids, Michigan, to Iran and from Ankara, Turkey, to Paris, France, My Name Is Mahtob depicts the profound resilience of a wounded soul healed by faith in God's goodness and in his care and love. And Mahmoody reveals the secret of how she liberated herself from a life of fear, learning to forgive the father who had shattered her life and discovering joy and peace that comes from doing so.

#UMBLACKOUT: Mobilizing Black Communities for Radical Transformation in the Digital Age

Through workshops, lectures, and a panel discussion, a wide variety of scholars, campus and grassroots organizers will engage in diverse reflections about the role of the internet in social change efforts through strategic mobilization. Join us in a collective discussion to advance discourse and direct action in community practice in the digital age. Collective Working Goals: *Unpacking the role of the internet in community ...mobilization. *Building bridges among scholars, national and campus activists. *Learning from black activist leadership for transformative change. *Establishing coalitions through solidarity across social identities. *Promoting youth engagement.

Women and the Environment* Symposium

February 24

2:00-8:00pm, Loosemore Auditorium, GVSU Campus, 401 Fulton St W, Grand Rapids MI 49504

<http://wmeac.org/event/women-environment-symposium/>

Women and the Environment is a one-day symposium that explores the intersection between women and gender issues and environmental concerns. This year the focus of the event is women in leadership, with presentations on faith and environment and diversity and inclusion efforts in the environmental movement in Michigan. The event is a valuable opportunity for professionals and students alike to learn about the issues, their history and current success stories. The symposium is the first large-scale meeting between local leaders and stakeholders in the academic, business and activism communities focused on gender and the environment. The symposium will again honor women for their accomplishments on behalf of West Michigan's natural resources.

Life On The Inside: Black Men In The Age Of Mass Incarceration

Live music will be featured from various local performers dedicated to this amazing cause, including David Schneider, David Gander, Bart Moore, Scott Smith, Chris Russell and more TBA. Van Helsteam will MC the evening of entertainment.

Life On The Inside P2: The Age of Mass Black Female Incarceration

March 26

2:00-3:00pm, Wayne State University, 42 W Warren Ave, Detroit, MI 48202

www.facebook.com/events/868775759904254/

As much of the focus on black incarceration has only highlighted the perspectives of black men, research shows black women have also been affected by this phenomenon. Incarceration rates for black women have increased by 800%, which effectively diminishes their ability to find work and care for their children. State Representative Candidate Charles Bell will provide a brief presentation on how black women are entangled within the mass incarceration social problem. Afterwards, a panel featuring 3 black women will discuss their experiences leading to, during, and after their incarceration.

Summer Volunteering Opportunity in Ghana

www.ghei.org/volunteers

This year GHEI is excited to be offering two Malaria Prevention sessions and one Girls' Empowerment session. The Summer Serve and Learn volunteer program offers a once-in-a-lifetime experience in international development work in Africa. Our volunteers take part in 16-day sessions working alongside local staff to reach common goals. Our programs are each designed to complement our year-round programming and the skills and expertise of our volunteers. By volunteering, you will have the opportunity to learn from the local community and gain profound insight into life in rural Ghana. You will benefit from the Twi language lessons, discussions on pertinent topics and cultural exchanges, such as meeting the village chief, a drumming and dancing workshop, and traveling to sites such as the historic Ghanaian cities of Kumasi and Cape Coast. To learn more, check out our website.

New York Times Article of Interest: "Campus Sex...With a Syllabus"

www.nytimes.com/2016/01/10/fashion/sexual-consent-assault-college-campuses.html?emc=eta1

"Mr. Kalin is the 24-year-old founder of a group called Party With Consent ... The lecture, which he would give four times on this day, to four different groups of students, was part of a sexual assault curriculum that Trinity College freshmen were required to complete (and had their attendance recorded to ensure it). "People often ask, 'Why teach consent?'" said the sociologist Harry Brod, a professor at the University of Northern Iowa and a longtime lecturer on the topic of consent. His answer: "Because we often have entirely different understandings of what it means." Mr. Kalin's own lecture grew out of that realization, as part of a group he was involved in as an undergraduate at Colby College, where he was captain of the basketball team, called Male Athletes Against Violence. At the time, he had noticed a tasteless slogan cropping up on T-shirts on and around campus. It read, "Party With Sluts." Mr. Kalin decided to turn the slogan on its head. He's no longer a rare voice, as college campuses across the country, responding to increased scrutiny, incorporate consent education programs into their curriculums."

New York Times Article of Interest: "To Catch a Rapist"

www.nytimes.com/2016/01/10/magazine/to-catch-a-rapist.html?mwrsm=Email&_r=0

"Most American rapes go unpunished. Rape statistics vary depending on the methodology used: The National Crime Victimization Survey, conducted annually by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, states that only about 34 percent of rape or sexual-assault cases were reported in 2014. Based on a rigorous review of the academic research, End Violence Against Women International, a renowned research and training organization for law-enforcement officers and other professionals involved in sexual-assault investigations, estimates that only 5 to 20 percent of sexual assaults are reported, depending on the population studied. And according to a 2011 report by the University of Kentucky Center for Research on Violence Against Women, only 14 to 18 percent of all sexual assaults reported to the police are prosecuted. ...

There is another unacknowledged side to the investigation of sexual assault: the huge numbers of victims who are children or teenagers. In New Haven, the detectives estimate that more than 80 percent of their cases involve minors — a number above but not that far afield from national statistics. In a 2014 study published by the National Center for Juvenile Justice, which analyzed data from the F.B.I.'s National Incident-Based Reporting System for the years 2009 and 2010, 61 percent of the female victims and 84 percent of the male victims of sexual assaults reported to law enforcement were younger than 18. For females, the age with the most sexual-assault victimizations was 14, and for males it was 4. ...

In spite of the difficulties of these investigations, it's far too common for special-victims units to be understaffed and low on resources, according to Joanne Archambault, a retired sergeant with the San Diego Police Department and executive director of End Violence Against Women International. Police chiefs and sheriffs are often pressured by the community and the media to focus on more visible problems. "They are focusing their energy on gangs and narcotics because that's what the community is talking about," Archambault says. Rarely is there an outcry over police response to sexual assaults. "It's the hidden epidemic, right? Nobody really wants to know about it."

Salon.com Article of Interest: "The Ugly Truth about Sexual Assault: More men admit to it if you don't call it rape" www.salon.com/2015/01/15/the_ugly_truth_about_sexual_assault_more_men_admit_to_it_if_you_dont_call_it Rape/

"A study from researchers at the University of North Dakota offered some troubling data about the sex lives of college men. Among the respondents, a group of 73 straight male students, one in three reported that they would force a woman to have sex if they knew they could get away with it. According to the report, 31 percent of the men surveyed said they would force a woman to have sex "if nobody would ever know and there wouldn't be any consequences." But when researchers asked the same question, this time dropping the language of forced sex and using the word rape instead, that number dropped to 13 percent. Respondents, it seems, were comfortable with the act of rape, just not the name. The findings, that copping to sexual violence can be a strange matter of semantics, aren't all that unique, according to the researchers. Here's what the study had to say about the conclusions of similar research that dealt with perceptions about rape among men and women: Specifically, when survey items describe behaviors (i.e., "Have you ever coerced somebody to intercourse by holding them down?") instead of simply label them (i.e., "Have you ever raped somebody?"), more men will admit to sexually coercive behaviors in the past and more women will self-report past victimization (Koss 1998). [...] Given that rape is defined as intercourse by use of force or threat of force against a victim's wishes, this discrepancy suggests that at least some men who rape do not seem to classify their behaviors as such."

Buzzfeed Article of Interest: "Why Are So Many Black Transgender Women Getting Killed in Detroit?"

www.buzzfeed.com/dominicholden/why-are-black-transgender-women-getting-killed-in-detroit#.tddBBAre9j

"More trans women were killed in the United States in the past 12 months than any year on record — and nowhere do the violence and homicides appear as concentrated as the Palmer Park area in Detroit. BuzzFeed News went to ask trans women who live there what they think is happening... Dawson said the Highland Park police's behavior could actually encourage more violence. 'When they are the ones doing the harassing, it makes it look like it's OK for everyone else to harass us.' She says people think, 'If police are doing it, maybe we can do it.'... Rather than blame victims, Dawson said, the public needs to embrace trans women like other women."

"President Barack Obama has signed an emergency declaration following a request from Gov. Rick Snyder that would open the door for federal aid to deal with Flint's water crisis. "The President's action authorizes the Department of Homeland Security, Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), to coordinate all disaster relief efforts which have the purpose of alleviating the hardship and suffering caused by the emergency on the local population, and to provide appropriate assistance for required emergency measures, authorized under Title V of the Stafford Act, to save lives and to protect property and public health and safety, and to lessen or avert the threat of a catastrophe in Genesee County," reads a statement from FEMA."

www.lansingstatejournal.com/story/news/local/2016/01/14/lgbt-leader-bill-beachler-remembered-trailblazer/78820416/

"William "Bill" Beachler spent decades on the front lines of the human rights movement. Along the way, he never wavered in his commitment to break down barriers to equality and raise awareness of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender issues, friends and fellow activists said. "He was not one of those people who just complained about things," Lansing City Councilwoman Carol Wood said. "He actually did something about it." Beachler, of Lansing, died Jan. 11. He was 70."

Conferences and Workshops

2016 Michigan Student Success Conference: Collaborating for Student Success

February 11-12, Troy, MI

https://secure.touchnet.com/C21178_ustores/web/product_detail.jsp?PRODUCTID=1885&SINGLESTORE=true

The theme of this year's conference is Collaborating for Student Success in its broadest terms, with a particular interest in ways in which engagement can enhance and broaden student learning and success. The conference welcomes proposals for sessions on all forms of collaboration whether internal between university offices and divisions or with external government, education, foundation, community, or business and industry partners in the interest of providing opportunities for students to grow and succeed. We want to hear about all the great things that your institution is doing to promote student success!

Midwest Undergraduate Conference in Gender Studies

February 12-13, University of Notre Dame, South Bend, IN

<http://genderstudies.nd.edu/events/2016/02/12/38034-midwest-undergraduate-conference-in-gender-studies/>

We welcome scholarship that deals with the significance of gender—and the cognate subjects of sex, sexuality, race, ethnicity, class, religion, and nationality—in all areas of human life, especially in the social formation of human identities, practices, and institutions. This conference offers students a public forum to present their research and discuss the gender component of it in an interdisciplinary, academic setting. Its aim is to support the development of an undergraduate gender studies research community in the Midwest. It is our expectation that participants will attend the entire two-day conference in order to facilitate an extended, two-day conversation that is focused on gender issues and developed amongst the conference participants, who we anticipate will come from a variety of academic disciplines. The conference will be co-sponsored by the Department of Gender and Women's Studies at Saint Mary's College and the Women's Studies Program at Indiana University South Bend.

Global Status of Women and Girls Conference

March 3-5, Christopher Newport University, Newport News, VA

<http://globalstatusofwomen-conf.org/>

This interdisciplinary conference seeks to foster inquiries into the complex and multifocal issues faced by women and girls around the world, both historically and today. The conference seeks not only to clarify key questions that must be asked in this vital area of public policy but also to unearth the forces that created these current dilemmas. Through the interdisciplinary study of past and present, the conference will engage researchers in policy conversations benefiting the global community. Topics to be covered may include, but are not limited to: The feminization of poverty; Wage inequality; Women in the workplace; Child marriage; War and women; Human trafficking; Environmental change and the economic status of women; Religion and the status of women; Girls and education; Sexual assault/rape; Disability and accessibility; Relational aggression between girls and women; Mental health and women; Artistic, mediated and literary representations / performances; Social media and social change for women and girls; Gender identity and socialization; Social policy and the state of women and girls; Environmental health risks to women; Effects of global climate change on women.

Sexuality and Gender in the Digital Age: No Limits 2016

March 11, University of Nebraska, Lincoln

www.unl.edu/wgs/no-limits-conference

The conference events include: Keynote speech "Pleasure and Danger: Sex, Violence, and Ethics in the Age of Digital Media" and student panels presenting academic and creative work. This year we moved to a one-day conference format with student panels in the morning and afternoon and an early evening keynote. While our theme is "Sexuality and Gender in the Digital Age," papers and panels can address a wide range of women's and gender themes. Presentations will come from undergraduates, graduate students, and recent graduates on any topic from any discipline related to women's issues, lives, histories or cultures; feminism; or women's and gender studies. In order to keep this event accessible to all participants, No Limits charges no conference registration fee. It is entirely supported by donations from academic departments and units within the University of Nebraska and the fundraising efforts of student organizations.

Michigan Environmental Health Association 2016 Annual Education Conference

March 15-18, Bay City, MI

www.meha.net/AEC

MEHA is now accepting submissions for student abstracts to display a poster of their research at the 2016 Annual Education Conference in Bay City, MI. The conference dates are March 15-18, 2016. This is your opportunity to become a leader in your field by imparting your knowledge and experience on the environmental health community. University students will have the opportunity to display their research during the evening social event at MEHA's Annual Educational Conference. This poster session will be held on Wednesday March 16th, 2016 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Selected students may also be eligible to be a presenter at the AEC. If you are interested in displaying a poster of your research, visit www.meha.net/AEC for more information. There will be poster guidelines to follow, which will also be listed on the MEHA website.

MSU Graduate Philosophy Conference: Starting from the Actual: Working Against Oppression and Marginalization

March 18-19

<http://philevents.org/event/show/19006>

Although philosophy has long been concerned with issues of ethics, social and political philosophy, there has been a tendency in mainstream accounts to address these concerns from an abstract and privileged perspective. Philosophical theorizing detached from the actual reality of oppression within society has produced distorted understandings and helped reinforce the status quo. In our conference we want to promote philosophical theorizing that subverts such detachment and distortion. Our goal is to help create space for philosophical work that addresses oppression and marginalization from starting points of actual oppression. We encourage contributions that are working with feminist, critical race, decolonial, transnational, disability, queer, trans, and Indigenous theories. Suggested topics include, but are not limited to: Intersection of multiple forms of oppression and marginalization; Ideal theory and non-ideal theory; Feminist care ethics and justice ethics; Epistemologies of resistance and/or epistemic oppression; Uses and critiques of identity-based politics; Transnationalism, migration, and/or refugee status; Climate change and vulnerable populations; Political protest and demonstration; Solidarity between marginalized communities; Feminist moral psychology (trust, shame, outrage, etc.); Agency and responsibility with regard to oppression; Analysis of embodiment and/or implications of embodiment for theorizing; Metaphilosophical and/or climate critiques of how academic philosophy is practiced as a discipline.

Feminisms Beyond the Secular: Emerging Epistemologies and Politics in the 21st Century

www.fbs.cas2.lehigh.edu/

The conference will explore the post-secular turn in feminist thought. Given its intellectual debts to secular humanism, liberal feminism has often had difficulty separating itself from a Western Enlightenment tradition. This tendency can pit feminist positions against women's active participation in religious institutions and movements and elide the ways in which different religious traditions shape gender norms. Non-Western and radical feminists have critiqued the oppressive aspects of this liberal tradition, deconstructed the boundaries between religion and secular, and offered alternative models for knowledge production and policy-making that are more compatible with women's piety. Critics of post-secular feminism however, see it as a form of political correctness that serves to re-inscribe religious and patriarchal authority over women's bodies and lives. The conference format will include traditional paper sessions as well as more interactive and collaborative opportunities. Through lively exchanges among scholars about the promises and perils of post-secular feminism, this conference hopes to clarify the terms of debate in this emergent area of feminist theory and politics. Please contact Nandini Deo ndd208@lehigh.edu and/or Jackie Krasas jkr205@lehigh.edu with questions or for additional information about the conference program.

Women's History Month Conference: Disrupting Power and Privilege to Empower Women

March 25, 8:30am-3:30pm, Campus Center at Rutgers University, Camden, NJ

<https://womens-studies.camden.rutgers.edu/2015/12/08/womens-history-month-conference-friday-march-25-2016/>

Presenters will include faculty, undergraduate and graduate students, activists, scholars, and artists in a variety of fields. Formats can include panels, papers, roundtable discussions, workshops, and performances. Examples of topics may include, but are not limited to discussions of gender issues in the following categories: campus climate, history, literature, religion, theatre, political and social sciences, sex industry, global development, border issues, the gender gap in politics, science, and technology, gender and technology, popular culture, social media, leadership, domestic violence/rape, motherhood/fatherhood, workplace success/discrimination, activism, fine arts, environmental issues, identity, gender issues/awareness/equity in higher education, K-12 education.

2016 Black Lesbian Conference: The Evolution of Our Community

March 25-26, Barnard College, New York, NY

www.csw.ucla.edu

Thinking Gender 2016 with the conference theme of "Spatial Awareness, Representation & Gendered Spaces": will engage with the politics of gender, race, sexuality, and space. We also intend to address international and transnational encounters, and colonization and decolonization practices, and topics that focus on the awareness of self, representation, and the navigation and negotiation of social and cultural space. Topics may include: Gender representation and state feminism; Physical culture and the body; Innovation through gender; Productive and reproductive labors; Security and gendered nationalism; Implicit bias and stereotype threat;

Migration and transnational encounters; Women, gender, and health; Women and sustainable development; Identity formation in memory and memoir; Controversial and transgressive art; Socialization and sexuality. Event is free and open to the public.

MSU's 23rd Annual Día de la Mujer Conference

April 9, 8:00am-5:00pm, Kellogg Center, MSU

www.facebook.com/events/1642580462686775/

The Día de la Mujer Conference began in 1994 to highlight the accomplishments of Latina women in our community. Since that time DDLM has grown into a multi-faceted series of workshops focusing on education, health, political, inter-personal relationships, culture, personal development, and self-empowerment for Latinas of all ages and backgrounds. DDLM is also an excellent opportunity for non-Latinos, who are interested in learning about the beliefs, views, and way of life in the Latino community. We encourage everyone to attend and participate in all that DDLM has to offer. DDLM is open and inclusive of all who value diversity and wish to learn about the growing Latino community. MSU student attendance is FREE!

Gender, Bodies & Technology: (In) Visible Futures Conference

April 21-23, Roanoke, VA

www.cpe.vt.edu/gbt/

Gender, Bodies, & Technology (GBT) is an initiative within Women's and Gender Studies at Virginia Tech that aims to creatively and intellectually explore the multiple, proliferating, and gendered dimensions of technologized bodies and embodied technologies. Through our initiative and biannual conference, we seek to demonstrate, theorize, and perform the discursive and material nodes around which gender, bodies, and technologies both cohere and fracture. We invite scholars, activists, and artists from the humanities, social and natural sciences, visual and performing arts, life sciences, disability studies, STEM fields, and queer and feminist science studies for papers, panels, workshops, new media, art, and performance pieces that explore the intersections of gender, bodies & technology in contexts ranging from virtual reality labs and engineering classrooms to grassroots movements and queer and feminist hacking spaces. How, we ask, might topics such as computer hacking, mass incarceration, or neuroscience produce new lines of inquiry when filtered through a GBT perspective? For more information or questions please contact: Christine Labuski/GBT Coordinator and Conference Director Women's and Gender Studies Program, Department of Sociology, Virginia Tech, McBryde Hall (0137) Blacksburg, VA, 24061 USA chrislab@vt.edu.

4th Annual Technology Summit on Working with Survivors of Abuse

July 25-27, San Francisco, CA

<http://techsafety.org/technology-summit>

This unique 3-day training focuses on the intersection of technology and domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, and trafficking. Covering a wide range of technology-related issues, this conference will be helpful to advocates, law enforcement, and legal professionals who work with survivors of abuse. For more information about previous Technology Summits, visit <http://techsafety.org/technology-summit> or check out last year's program book. All workshops will be 60-90 minutes in length. Registration for the Technology Summit will open soon and will be announced with other information through our listservs and on techsafety.org. Please feel free to contact us at safetynet@nnev.org if you have any other questions.

4th International Anarchist Studies Network Conference: Anarcha-feminism

September 14-16, Loughborough University, UK

<http://anarchist-studies-network.org.uk/>

The global resistance faces turbulent times, as the balance of hope teeters between inspiring mobilization and reactionary retrenchment. In Rojava, Kurdish communities are implementing libertarian socialism and feminist leadership on a scale unseen since the Spanish civil war, while world powers bomb the democratic Syrian opposition alongside ISIS. The mobilization of African Americans against police brutality goes beyond liberal platitudes to highlight systemic racism, while competitors for the Republican candidacy outdo one another in barefaced bigotry and misogyny. In these uncertain days, the elaboration of anarchist analysis which bridges theory and practice and speaks to the needs of social movements assumes increasing importance. The central theme for the conference is anarcha-feminism. By recognizing the legacy of anarcha-feminists and women's activism in anarchism we want to strengthen the ties between contemporary anarchists and feminists and use the recognition of misogynist practices and hierarchical gender structures to open up the event to other marginalized peoples. We hope to have presentations that are concerned with anarchism and one/more of the following: anarcha-feminist and queer theory, anarcha-feminist critiques of the state, anarcha-feminist histories, Ecofeminism, individualist anarcha-feminism, anarcho-primitivist feminism, posthuman, cyborg and sci-fi anarcho-feminism, Feminist critiques of anarchism and anarchist engagement with feminism, Intersections between gender, sexuality, race, class, abilities and anarchism, local anarcho-feminist struggles / experiences, Love, sex, relationships (or resistance to), Masculine and feminine representations and the movement between them, Sex work and reproductive rights, The role of women and non-binary people in the struggle against capitalism. ASN conferences aim to breach new frontiers in anarchist scholarship, and encourage cross-pollination between disciplines.

National Women's Studies Association Annual Conference: Decoloniality
November 10-13, Montreal, Quebec

www.nwsa.org

Decoloniality is a worldview that denaturalizes settler colonial logics and structuring violences. Coloniality and settler governance are transnational in scope and include territorial occupation, conquest, removal, economic exploitation, resource extraction, displacement, and dehumanization. Settler colonialism is also a way of knowing that permeates institutions, including education, the law, science, economics, politics, and religion. Decoloniality disrupts and departs from settler logics, structures, myths, stories, archives, institutions, affects, embodiments, aesthetics, desires, ontologies, categories, cartographies, and politics. It has a long, diverse genealogy and can be understood as an ongoing process of co-resistance and alliance. As an approach to thought and action, decolonial work exposes how coloniality is not "past": simultaneously, it traces forms of critical and creative resistance and shows possibilities for (and the necessity of) decolonial being/ knowing/ loving/ resisting/ creating (L. Simpson 2015).

Women's History Month Conference: Disrupting Power and Privilege to Empower Women

March 25, 8:30am-3:30pm, Campus Center at Rutgers University, Camden, NJ

Submission Deadline: February 29

<https://womens-studies.camden.rutgers.edu/2015/12/08/womens-history-month-conference-friday-march-25-2016/>

We invite faculty, undergraduate and graduate students, activists, scholars, artists in all fields to propose panels, papers, roundtable discussions, workshops, and performances. Proposals are welcome to address the conference theme or to focus on other topics related to gender. Panel formats will include 60-minute sessions of 2-3 presenters. Workshops, roundtables, and performances will be 60 minutes. Proposals may include a single paper abstract or may include several presenters' related abstracts for a panel discussion. Workshop and roundtable proposals should describe discussion topic and objectives.

Examples of topics may include, but are not limited to discussions of gender issues in the following categories: campus climate, history, literature, religion, theatre, political and social sciences, sex industry, global development, border issues, the gender gap in politics, science, and technology, gender and technology, popular culture, social media, leadership, domestic violence/rape, motherhood/fatherhood, workplace success/discrimination, activism, fine arts, environmental issues, identity, gender issues/awareness/equity in higher education, K-12 education.

MSU's 4th Annual Workshop on Food Justice: Bringing Theory and Practice Together

May 13-14

Submission Deadline: March 4

workshonfoodjustice.com/call-for-proposals/

Food justice is a growing movement that has inspired both on-the-ground community projects and theoretical articulations across multiple disciplines. This workshop aims to help scholars and practitioners identify and address the challenges and opportunities in food justice. The 2016 workshop will include scholarly talks and visits to local environmental justice projects. We invite proposals on the justice of practices such as: food security and food sovereignty; local food, slow food, or other food-based social movements; international trade and regulation; agricultural ecology and sustainability; labor at all points in the food system; non-human animals in agriculture; food, diet, or cooking; intersectional perspectives on food systems; agricultural policy and food standards; and Seeds and genetically modified foods. Previous papers have been informed by disciplines such as anthropology, critical race studies, disability studies, indigenous studies, economics, gender and sexuality studies, geography, history, literary criticism, philosophy, religious studies, sociology, and the human dimensions of agricultural and environmental sciences. 250-word abstracts for individual papers or posters, and 500-word panel proposals are due by March 4. Please submit proposals through the workshop webpage and direct any questions to workshopenfoodjustice@gmail.com.

4th International Anarchist Studies Network Conference: Anarcha-feminism

Submission Deadline: March 14

In these uncertain days, the elaboration of anarchist analysis which bridges theory and practice and speaks to the needs of social movements assumes increasing importance.

Proposals are welcome for individual papers, panels, and streams of several panels. We especially encourage panel proposals, to include 3-4 presentations drawn together around a common theme, although individual paper proposals are of course also welcome. Contributions from both within and outside the official academic sphere are invited from any scholarly discipline(s), on any topic relevant to the study of anarchism.

The central theme for the conference is anarcha-feminism. By recognizing the legacy of anarcha-feminists and women's activism in anarchism we want to strengthen the ties between contemporary anarchists and feminists and use the recognition of misogynist practices and hierarchical gender structures to open up the event to other marginalized peoples. We therefore particularly encourage submissions from women, trans and non-binary people, queer activists, collectives, people of color, people with disabilities. We are also especially interested in presentations that are concerned with anarchism and one/more of the following:

anarcha-feminist and queer theory, anarcha-feminist critiques of the state, anarcha-feminist histories, ecofeminism, individualist anarcha-feminism, anarcho-primitivist feminism, posthuman, cyborg and sci-fi anarcha-feminism, feminist critiques of anarchism and anarchist engagement with feminism, Intersections between gender, sexuality, race, class, abilities and anarchism, local anarcho-feminist struggles / experiences, Love, sex, relationships (or resistance to), Masculine and feminine representations and the movement between them, Sex work and reproductive rights, The role of women and non-binary people in the struggle against capitalism. ASN conferences aim to breach new frontiers in anarchist scholarship, and encourage cross-pollination between disciplines. As well as submissions that bridge the gap between 'academic' and other forms of knowledge, we also welcome proposals for workshops, art events/performances and experimental pieces and are happy to discuss ideas that you might have. Please send abstracts of up to 250 words per paper (multiply for panel/stream proposals) to ASN Co-convenor Uri Gordon at u.gordon@lboro.ac.uk.

QED: A Journal in GLBTQ Worldmaking

Applications accepted on a rolling basis.

<http://msupress.org/journals/qed/subguide/?id=50-214-F>

QED: A Journal in GLBTQ Worldmaking ventures to bring together scholars, activists, public intellectuals, policy makers, artists, and other cultural producers to explore issues that matter to the diverse lived experience, struggle, and transformation of GLBTQ peoples wherever they may be. With an emphasis on worldmaking praxis, QED mobilizes public argument, theory, criticism, and history through its published essays, commentaries, interviews, roundtable discussions, and event, performance, and book review. The journal is published three times per year. Submission guidelines can be found at the website linked above.

Gendered Perspectives on International Development

Applications accepted on a rolling basis.

<http://gencen.isp.msu.edu/publications/>

Gendered Perspectives on International Development (GPID) publishes scholarly work on global social, political, and economic change and its gendered effects in developing nations. GPID cross-cuts disciplines, bringing together research, critical analyses, and proposals for change. Our previous series, the WID Working Papers (1981-2008), was among the first scholarly publications dedicated to promoting research on the links between international development and women and gender issues. In this tradition, GPID recognizes diverse processes of international development and globalization, and new directions in scholarship on gender relations. The goals of GPID are: 1) to promote research that contributes to gendered analysis of social change; 2) to highlight the effects of international development policy and globalization on gender roles and gender relations; and 3) to encourage new approaches to international development policy and programming. GPID Working Papers are article-length manuscripts (9,000-word maximum) by scholars from a broad range of disciplines, disseminating materials at a late stage of formulation that contribute new understandings of women's and men's roles and gender relations amidst economic, social, and political change. Individual papers in the series address a range of topics, such as: gender, violence, and human rights; gender and agriculture; reproductive health and healthcare; gender and social movements; masculinities and development; and the gendered division of labor. We particularly encourage manuscripts that bridge the gap between research, policy, and practice. If you are interested in submitting a manuscript to the GPID Working Papers series, please send a 150-word abstract summarizing the paper's essential points and findings to Jessica Ott, Managing Editor, at papers@msu.edu. If the abstract suggests your paper is suitable for the GPID Working Papers, the full paper will be invited for peer review and publication consideration. Please note that authors retain the copyright to their papers and are encouraged to publish their papers in other journals.

Women in Judaism: A Multidisciplinary Journal

Applications accepted on a rolling basis.

<http://wjudaism.library.utoronto.ca/index.php/wjudaism/about/submissions#onlineSubmissions>

WOMEN IN JUDAISM: A MULTIDISCIPLINARY JOURNAL is an academic, refereed journal published exclusively on the Internet, and devoted to scholarly debate on gender-related issues in Judaism. The ultimate aim of the journal is to promote the reconceptualization of the study of Judaism, by acknowledging and incorporating the roles played by women, and by encouraging the development of alternative research paradigms. Cross-methodological and interdisciplinary, the journal does not promote a fixed ideology, and welcomes a variety of approaches. Submissions are always welcome. Electronic submissions through the journal's system are encouraged at all times. See the link above for submission citation and formatting guidelines. What to submit: Articles; essays; short notes; book, film and theatre reviews; conference proceedings and bibliographies from all disciplines in the humanities and social sciences. Materials for the Journal are submitted to a blind-review process. The editors reserve the right to edit manuscripts with respect to length and content; however, any substantial changes will be made in consultation with the author. Previously published materials are also considered. However, it is the author's responsibility to obtain the copyright permission from their publisher. Authors are welcome to include images and/or pictures with their submission. Copyright issues for these should be cleared by the authors before submission. Women in Judaism usually publishes within twelve months. Every effort is made to shorten the publication schedule. Authors are encouraged to inquire about the status of their submissions periodically. Prior to the publication date, authors will be required to sign a copyright agreement with Women in Judaism Inc. Basically, this copyright agreement grants Women in Judaism the exclusive rights to publish the work on the Internet. Women in Judaism: A Multidisciplinary Journal is a non-paying market.

Trauma, Violence, & Abuse

Applications accepted on a rolling basis.

<https://us.sagepub.com/en-us/nam/trauma-violence-abuse/journal200782#submission-guidelines>

Trauma, Violence, & Abuse is devoted to synthesizing, expanding, and organizing knowledge on all forms of trauma, violence and abuse. It is dedicated to professionals and advanced students who work in all forms of trauma, violence and abuse and is intended to compile knowledge that impacts practice, policy, and research. A practitioner-oriented journal, Trauma, Violence, & Abuse (TVA) publishes review manuscripts which cover a body of empirical research, legal case studies, or theoretical/conceptual ideas affecting practice, policy, and research. TVA does not publish case studies nor reports of individual research studies. TVA accepts comprehensive reviews of research, legal cases, or conceptual and theoretical developments in any aspect of trauma, violence or abuse. Each manuscript must begin with a clear description of the knowledge area that is being researched or reviewed and its relevance to understanding or dealing with trauma, violence, or abuse. Each review manuscript must also provide a clear discussion of the limits of the knowledge which has been reviewed, and must include two summary tables; one of critical findings and the other listing implications of the review for practice, policy, and research. The tables must accompany submission. Manuscripts should be prepared in APA style and may be up to forty typed double spaced pages in length. All manuscripts are peer reviewed and should be submitted with a letter indicating that the material has not been published elsewhere and is not under review at another publication. Manuscripts should be submitted electronically to <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/tva> where authors will be required to set up an online account on the SageTrack system powered by ScholarOne. Inquiries may be made by email at contej@u.washington.edu.

Positions and Internships

Research Associate Position, The Five College Women's Studies Research Center 2016-17

Application Deadline: February 15

https://www.fivecolleges.edu/fcwsrc/applying_to_the_center

The Center is located in a geographic area with one of the largest concentrations of scholars dedicated to feminist scholarship in the world. Given an office with access to extensive consortium resources, associates gather regularly to discuss their research with each other and local faculty in a variety of settings. Applicants should complete an online application that includes a project proposal (up to three pages in length), curriculum vitae and contact information for two professional references. Project proposals should include 1) a statement about the contribution to and significance of the project or dissertation for women and gender studies, 2) a detailed description of the project or dissertation and timeline, 3) how a stay in the Five Colleges will advance the project or dissertation. Travel, housing and living expenses are the responsibility of Associates in this unpaid residency. It is important that associates remain in residence for the duration; beyond this requirement for the facilitation of community, associates define the scope of their research program for the semester or year. The center's director will help identify conversation partners and resources as requested.

MSU GenCen Co-Director Position Searches Announced

ISP is conducting a search for two new Co-Directors at GenCen this semester. The search for the Academic Programs-focused position will be internal. The search for the International Research-focused position will be simultaneously internal and external. The Search Committee plans to conduct formal campus interviews for the Academic Programs position during March and for the International Research position during April.

Members of the Search Committee are: Fred Rauscher (Assoc. Dean, CAL), Emine Evered (History), Kristie Dotson (Philosophy), Leo Zulu (Geography), Andrea Allen (CASID), Amy Jamison (GenCen), and Laurie Medina (Latin American and Caribbean Studies/Anthropology).

GenCen is headed by Co-Directors. One (Academic Programs, Outreach and Engagement), is primarily responsible for developing and managing the College of Arts and Letters Major and Minor in Women's and Gender Studies, the Graduate Specialization in Gender Studies, the LGBTQ minor, and outreach to community and women's organizations. The other Co-Director (International Research and Engagement) is responsible for promoting gender-related research and outreach across the campus and for fostering faculty-led international partnerships with other women's and gender studies programs around the globe.

How to apply for the Co-Director of Academic Programs position: For consideration, please go to www.jobs.msu.edu, search for posting 2733 and follow the application process. Interested individuals should submit a cover letter, a CV, up to 3 relevant publications. Applicants should also have 3 letters of reference emailed to the search committee chair, medina@msu.edu. Review of applications will begin on February 23, 2016, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

How to apply for the Co-Director of International Research Engagement position: For consideration, please go to www.jobs.msu.edu, search for posting 2734 and follow the application process. Interested individuals should submit a cover letter, a CV, up to 3 relevant publications. Applicants should also have 3 letters of reference emailed to the search committee chair, medina@msu.edu. Review of applications will begin on March 9, 2016, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Cluster Hire in Race, Immigration, and Integration, University of California Riverside

Applications accepted until position is filled.

<http://spp.ucr.edu/jobs/cluster-hire-race-immigration-integration.html>

The University of California Riverside is embarking on a major new hiring initiative that will add 300 tenure-track positions in 33 cross-disciplinary areas selected through a peer-reviewed competition. Over the next three years, we will hire multiple faculty members in each area and invest in research infrastructure to support their work. This announcement aims to fill up to four positions, at both the junior and senior levels, in social science research related to "Race, Immigration, and Integration: Empirical and Applied Approaches." Topical areas of focus in this cluster search include: social movement and political power, including community mobilization against discrimination, hate crimes, police brutality, and immigrant detention; educational opportunities across the K-16 education pipeline with a focus on racialization, including its intersections with class, gender, sexuality, and immigration status; the study of media (including mainstream media, ethnic media, and social media) and its relationship to social attitudes, civic engagement, and community formation; and demography and public health, including disparities in health and health care delivery, immigrant health, and culturally competent health care services. Candidates should clearly indicate their topic(s) of focus in their cover letter. We are looking for candidates with a strong research record commensurate with rank, including relevant fellowships, honors, and awards. Candidates will be expected to teach and guide the research of undergraduate and graduate students, and they should be committed to boosting UCR's research in empirical and applied research on race, immigration, and integration.

Study Opportunities

“Extending the Land Ethic”: A Four-Week Summer Institute for University Professors

June 20-July 15, Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff

Application Deadline: March 1

<https://humanities-sustainability.asu.edu/>

The institute will accept up to 25 professors, graduate students, nonprofit administrators, public officials, and others who teach or research humanities disciplines that examine the relationship between humans and nature, such as environmental ethics, ecofeminism, environmental history, green religion, and ecocriticism. The connection between ecologist Aldo Leopold’s “Land Ethic” and contemporary notions of sustainability is the institute’s central organizing principle. Faculty for the four-week session include MacArthur Prize recipient Gary Paul Nabhan; Curt Meine, Leopold’s primary biographer; famed Native American writer Linda Hogan; and noted climate philosopher Dale Jamieson. Guest speakers and field trips to sites that raise questions about sustainable land and cultural practices round out the institute. Successful applicants are asked to work on a project that incorporates the institute’s research, such as a publication, new college course; those projects could include a digital component. Each participant will receive a $3,300 stipend to cover travel, lodging, meals, books, and related institute expenses. For more information contact Institute directors Joan McGregor joan.mcgregor@asu.edu or Dan Shilling dan.shilling@asu.edu

Oregon State University Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Fall 2016 Study Abroad in London

September 4-December 10, London, UK

This faculty-led study abroad program is in conjunction with University of Oregon’s GEO program, and will take place at the GEO Centre in Bloomsbury, very near Russell Square. Students from any college or university are welcome to participate and transfer credits back to their home institutions. Students may also take 1-2 additional courses at the GEO Centre for up to 16 credits.

Law & Order: UK (4 semester credits). This course explores a variety of British mystery novels and TV crime dramas from feminist and critical race perspectives. The selected novels and TV shows are set across an array of historical times and places in England, further affording us opportunity to explore British history and culture, the changing roles of gender, race, and class in the UK throughout the years, and British social institutions. Each week, we’ll visit a “scene of the crime” related to the novel or crime dramas of the week.

Gender, Race, Class & Religions in the UK (4 semester credits). This course examines many of the religious traditions found throughout the UK with special attention to issues of gender, race, social class, immigration status, and sexual identity within the tradition. Drawing from transdisciplinary perspectives, we will explore the intersection of religion with significant global issues for the 21st century. Each week, we’ll visit a religious site, such as the London Central Mosque and Islamic Cultural Center, Westminster Abbey, the West London Synagogue, and the Buddhapadipa Temple.

We’ll also take excursions to Edinburgh, Oxford, Stonehenge, and Stratford-upon-Avon. We’ll have a web site and application site up soon. In the meantime, please email sshaw@oregonstate.edu for more information.

MSU Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender

<http://gencen.isp.msu.edu/academics/graduate.htm/#specialization>

The Graduate Specialization in Women and Gender is designed for completion by either Master’s or doctoral students. The graduate specialization in Women and Gender is designed to foster the study of women and gender across disciplines and national borders, provide opportunities for graduate students to obtain a comprehensive, cross/interdisciplinary academic experience in women and gender, and to foster the growth of interdisciplinary research and teaching on women and gender. Emphasis is given to understanding the diversity of women’s lives nationally and globally. The graduate specialization is open to graduate students with adequate undergraduate preparation in women and gender. The specialization should complement advanced, discipline-based degrees by providing an interdisciplinary, feminist component.

MSU Undergraduate Minor in Defense Studies & Leadership

www.reg.msu.edu/AcademicPrograms/ProgramDetail.asp?Program=7721

The new minor in Defense Studies and Leadership is now available for enrollment. This minor is open to all undergraduates. The minor is administered by the Department of History, with Emily Tabuteau as advisor. She can be contacted at tabuteau@msu.edu. Students who want to talk before deciding whether to take on the minor should also email the advisor to set up a time to meet.

MSU Undergraduate Specialization in Bioethics, Humanities, and Society

bioethics.msu.edu/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=202&Itemid=29

This program strives to serve students who seek to broaden their understanding of health and healing by drawing on several disciplinary perspectives, including philosophy, history, literature, anthropology, sociology, and others. We commonly find that, among others, many pre-professional students (pre-nursing, pre-dental, pre-medical, and pre-public health) are interested in our program.

MA in Women's History at Sarah Lawrence College

Syracuse University in Florence is happy to announce the expansion of its academic concentration in Gender and Sexuality Studies, which now offers 9 upper-division courses cross-listed in both Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender Studies (LGBT) and Women's and Gender Studies (WGS). Gender and Sexuality Studies in Florence provides an opportunity for students to explore European attitudes and lifestyles that are often very different from those current in their home culture. Internships and opportunities for Community Engagement with local organizations, municipal offices and activist groups are open to all students.

MA in Women's and Gender Studies at the University of Florida

<http://web.wst.ufl.edu/>

A Master's degree in Women's Studies prepares you for doctoral work in a broad range of disciplines or for careers in teaching, social policy making, nongovernmental organizations, health and human services, and the arts and performance. Students pursuing interdisciplinary graduate work in the Center for Women's Studies and Gender Research at the University of Florida learn about feminist and other theoretical approaches and methodologies for examining the role of gender in cultural systems. Gender is understood in intersection with other sociocultural categories, including race, ethnicity, social class, sexuality, religion, physical ability, age, and nationality.
