

Libraries
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

PLEASE POST

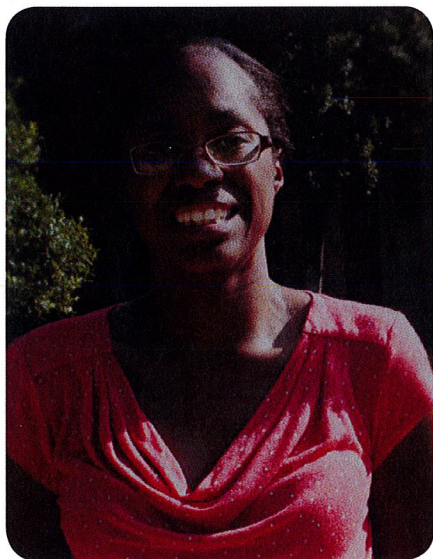

HALLOWED GROUNDS: RACE, SLAVERY, AND MEMORY

Tuesday, February 12, 2019 • 4:00–5:30 pm
MSU Main Library, Green Room (4 West)

Professor Hilary N. Green

Hallowed Grounds: Race, Memory, and the University of Alabama highlights visualizations, transcriptions, primary sources, and other materials for understanding the history of slavery at the University of Alabama and its legacy. It is designed to provide individuals who have completed one of the Hallowed Ground alternate campus tours with expanded opportunities for exploration. It is for current students, alumni and staff who want to deepen their understanding on this underappreciated campus history as well as educators who want to enrich their courses. More importantly, it is a resource for descendants grappling with this complicated history and all other interested life-long learners. It is a work in progress.

Cosponsored by

Digital Humanities at MSU

Consortium for Critical Diversity in a Digital Age Research (CEDAR)

MSU Department of English

MSU Africa and African-American Studies

bookings.lib.msu.edu | @MSULibraries

For parking information, please visit <http://maps.msu.edu/interactive>. Persons with disabilities may request accommodations by calling 517.884.6454 one week before an event.